Strong Arab Drive to Cut Holy Land Reported

1500 Volunteers Pushing Westward Of Jerusalem, Damascus Says

Jerusalem, Feb. 20 (AP).—A Damascus dispatch said today that 1500 Arabs had launched a powerful offensive in northern Palestine in an effort to cut the Holy Land in two.

An Arab army source in the Syrian capital gave this account of the fighting:

The assault was launched by Arab volunteer fighters some 50 miles north of Jerusalem in the Bieson area. Reinforcements were being rushed into the engagement which was described as the "most ferocious" to date.

The Arabs were seeking to reopen a corridor from the Trans-Jordan frontier to the Nablus-Jenin-Tulkarm triangle where Arab volunteers have been reported concentrating.

Threat to Tel Aviv

Military observers in Syria said if the drive were successful it would "pose a strong Arab spearhead" at the Jewish coastal city of Tel Aviv. The Arabs were reported to be setting up a Jewish prison camp in the Nablus area.

The Palestine government announced 31 Arabs and one Jew were killed in an attack Monday in northern Palestine, when Haganah, the Jewish militia, blasted two bridges allegedly used by Arabs to enter Palestine.

There were no casualty reports on the fighting near the Trans-Jordan frontier. Elsewhere in Palestine 16 persons were killed in a series of bitter clashes. Communal fighting has claimed 1297 lives in the Holy Land, since November 29.

3 Arabs Killed In Haifa

The Palestine government said three Arabs were killed and 36 others injured, during a two-hour battle between the Jewish and Arab districts of Haifa. No Jewish casualties were listed.

Earlier a dozen young Jews, identified by police as suspected members of the extremist Irgun Zvai Leumi group, tunneled to freedom from a Jerusalem prison.

Jewish DPs Train For Palestine Combat

Vienna, Feb. 20 (NYHT).—Young Jewish displaced persons are being trained in platoon strength in the three western zones of Austria for combat service in Palestine, it was learned tonight.

About 1000 young men have been undergoing rigorous basic training for the last two months. Jewish underground leaders hope ultimately to whip together 5000 trained men from a DP population of 26,000.

The first platoons will leave for Palestine via the underground when they are adjudged fit for combat.

Buck Offers Bill To Control D. C. Rents Until 1949

Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) yesterday proposed giving the District another year of rent control.

He predicted, however, that changes would be necessary in the present law, particularly to remove transient rooms from rent control.

Buck, chairman of the Senate District Committee, introduced a bill in the Senate that would continue the present law from its present expiration date, March 31, to March 31, 1949.

The bill is set for Senate District Committee hearings beginning March 3.

Jewish Campaign Opens Here Today

Some 350 Jewish leaders will hold a two-day session here, today and tomorrow, to open the 250-million-dollar campaign of the United Jewish Appeal for refugees, overseas needs and Palestine.

Speakers will include former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., general chairman of the appeal, and Mrs. Goldie Myerson, member of the Jewish Agency in Palestine. A dinner meeting will be held at the Shoreham Hotel tonight.

A special delegation will report on conditions in Palestine and central Europe as seen on its recent month-long tour.

Romania Asks U. N. To Aid Typhus Fight

Paris, Feb. 20 (AP).—Romania has appealed to a United Nations agency for help in fighting a typhus epidemic.

The United Nations' International Children's Emergency Fund said 2500 new cases are being reportew weekly in Romania, but did not know the total.

Economic Pact Unites Saar With France

U. S., Britain Agree Valley's Products May Be Sold as Exports

Paris, Feb. 20 (AP).—France today obtained full satisfaction from Britain and the United States on her long-standing demand for attachment of the Saar Valley to the French economy.

The three powers signed an accord on the subject in Berlin. It provides that henceforth commerce between the Saar and Germany will be treated as foreign trade. The Saar formerly was part of Germany.

After April 1 all Saar exports to Germany will be payable in dollars. An exception is Saar coal, which will be paid for in marks. The Saar also used to send steel to Germany. Now France may keep it, or sell it to Germany for dollars.

A French official said Saar coal production—now about 40,000 tons a day—will be withdrawn from the German coal pool. In effect Saar coal thus becomes French coal. Saar coal deliveries to Germany will cease in 1949.

The official said France has been assured her proportion of coal from

To balance the separation of the Saar from the German economy, France has consented to reduce her reparations demands against Germany by 70 million marks, in the value of 1938 German currency. The preware rate of the reichsmark was 40 cents.

The official said the agreement had no connection with the proposed merger of the French occupation zone with the British-American Bizonia. Discussions on zonal merger begin next week in London.

The 726-square-mile Saar was in French hands for 15 years after the first world war under the Versailles treaty. A plebiscite then was held and the Saarlanders voted to return to Germany.

Last October the Saarlanders overwhelmingly elected a parliament pledged to make the Saar an autonomous part of France.

Gould Granddaughter's Mate Asks $250,000

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 20 (AP).—A $250,000 damage suit in United States District Court here accuses Mrs. Gioia Barker Grimditch, granddaughter of the late financier, George Jay Gould, of moral misconduct.

The action was filed by William H. Grimditch, jr., a Harvard student, against his wife and Blake Brophy, son of a Phoenix bank president.

Czechoslovak Coalition Rule Breaks Down

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 20 (AP).—Czechoslovakia reached the crossroads between East and West today.

The three out-and-out anti-Communist parties suddenly withdrew from the cabinet after a dramatic "sit-down strike" that left only Communists attending a cabinet session. The issue was alleged Communist attempts at police rule of the state.

Tonight Communist broadcasts proclaimed a "new Peoples' Democratic National Front" and said Communist Premier Klement Gottwald had demanded that President Eduard Benes allow him to name replacements for the cabinet members who resigned.

All Prague police were ordered to special duty tonight as crowds increased in Vaclavske Namesti, the huge public square, and tempers grew short.

The resignations threatened to end the coalition government that has rule Czechoslovakia since April, 1945. If that happens, Czechoslovakia will be propelled into a new national election in which Communists and the other parties will battle for control of this remaining central European country that so far has escaped all-out Soviet domination.

United States Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt projected an old issue into the situation today when he told the press he hoped Czechoslovakia still would participate in the Marshall recovery plan for Europe. The Czechoslovaks first accepted an invitation to the Paris Marshall Plan conference last summer, but pulled out after high officials were summoned to Moscow. Steinhardt returned from the United States yesterday.

The crisis was preciptated when four parties of the coalition refused to attend the cabinet session.

While the Communist ministers sat alone in the cabinet room with Communist Premier Klement Gottwald, the other cabinet members gathered in their party offices in the Prime Minister's building. For about six hours they sat pat while an almost constant stream of notes passed in and out of the cabinet room.

Demand Nosek Back Down

The party leaders demanded that Communist Interior Minister Vaclav Nosek back down from his order calling for a purge of non-Communists from high posts in the police force.

The Communists refused to rescind the order of February 13 transferring eight non-Communist police district supervisors.

Then the Czech Socialists, who had two posts in the government, resigned. The three Slovak Democrats and three Catholic Peoples

2 Youths Held In Robbery, Kidnap Case

Quick Morning Raid Surprises Suspects; Driver of Car Sought

Careful police study of a suspected neighborhood and a quick raid yesterday led to the arrest of a junior high school youth and a soldier for a Wednesday night kidnap-robbery which was followed by two store holdups.

Detective Sergts. Nunzio Bonaccorsy and Joseph Hunt of the robbery squad said the two arrested youths, Roger D. Grant, 16, recent Terrell Junior High School student, and Bernard E. Ward, 19, AWOL private from Fort Dix, N. J., admitted in a signed statement that they kidnaped and robbed John A. Selby, 51, Naval Gun Factory painter of 1350 E st. ne.

They also admitted verbally that they held up a liquor store and a pharmacy after taking Selby's car, according to the detectives. A third man, who had worked with the alleged robbers and drove the car, is still being sought, police said.

Policemen In Raid

The 4 a. m. raid on a first-floor apartment at 1006 4th st. nw. by 10 policemen was made 33 hours after Selby was kidnaped in his own car. The auto had been abandoned in the nearby 900 block and the robbery squad detectives worked from that fact as a start.

While victims of the three robberies were fruitlessly shown rogues' gallery pictures Thursday, detectives spent all day combing the 4th st. neighborhood and talking with any persons who might have seen the suspects. They had descriptions of the wanted men given by Selby and a prospective customer at the Salb Pharmacy, 316 H st. ne., where Bernard B. Larrick, 62, co-owner,

Marshall Was 'Unaware' of Yalta Details

Secretary Was Not Informed of Terms, He Tells House Unit Studying Chinese Aid

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Secretary Marshall ran head-on into a discussion of secret history, MacArthur-for-President politics, relations with Russia and other issues when he went to Capitol Hill yesterday to explain the proposed 570-million-dollar program of helping China.

He threw light on secret history by disclosing that at the Yalta Conference, as Chief of Staff, he had been "unaware" of details of the top-secret agreement giving Russia the Kurile Islands and control of the Manchurian railways.

He sat in the glare of klieg lights, looking uncomfortable, while members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee argued over bringing Gen. Douglas MacArthur home from Tokyo to testify.

Gives Opinions on Questions

He advised questioners that it would be dangerous to reopen the German reparations question now; that cutting off trade with Russia would produce more "irritation" than good; that greater trade between eastern and western Europe was essential to European recovery.

During long stretches of the questioning the China program was lost to sight. It was clear that some committee members weren't interested in it, some thought it unwise at this time, and still others thought the 570-million-dollar program did not go far enough.

In the last category was Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.), who produced the Secretary's answer about the Yalta agreement. Judd was trying to prove that the situation in China resembled that in Greece, and demanded militray as well as economic and monetary help by the United States.

Danger of China Collapsing?

"Would you say there is a danger of the Chinese government collapsing?" he asked.

"The deterioration will be dangerously rapid unless something is done to halt it," the Secretary answered.

"If the Chinese government should collapse, then China would be organized and taken over by the Communists?"

The Secretary thought this could happen only north of the Yangtze River.

"If all China as far as the Yangtze were taken over by the Communists," Judd persisted, "would our position in Korea be tenable?"

"I think it would not long be tenable."

"And we would face the choice of withdrawing from Japan or endless subsidies and military support of Japan?"

"There is no question but that

Psychological Role May Be Greatest Danger, Some Say; Union Demands Seen

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Government economists, viewing Thursday's report of a $5 a ton average price increase for semifinished steel products, generally agreed yesterday on four basic conclusions:

1. The action demonstrates that, despite the break in grain prices, strong inflationary forces still exist in certain parts of the national economy. "We are not out of the inflationary woods yet," one economist noted.

2. The psychological result of the price increase, rather than its direct result in added costs to consumers, is likely to be the most important. It may suggest to businessmen, wavering over future plans because of the grain price drop, that markets are still strong.

3. Despite steel leaders' denials, the increases open the way to sizable "third-round" wage increases for Philip Murray's CIO steelworkers.

4. Since the steel industry is a traditional pace-setter in the wage race, those third-round pay boosts will be followed elsewhere in industry. Once cemented in the economy, they will constitute either another filip to inflation, or at the minimum, a barrier to a steep and sudden deflation.

Back to a Gallop?

Beyond these points, however, agreement among Federal economists ended.

One group, with powerful Administration influence, construed the higher steel prices as meaning a resumption of the galloping inflationary trend.

They saw the possibility of stabilizing or reversing the price movement, which they said was afforded by the two-week drop in grain prices, as knocked into a cocked hat.

But other Federal experts considered this view to be a gross overstatement. They still foresaw the possibility of price breaks in many other parts of the economy—lumber, housing, textiles and leather, for examples. And they concluded that agricultural prices could and would move quite independently of the trend in steel.

Two Points of View

The first group saw in the steel industry's action something "quite inexcusable" in its effect on the whole economy and in its justification. For they argued that steel profits, at record levels with peacetime record production, warranted no higher prices.

But the second group argued that steel prices were relatively low, having lagged behind most other commodities. And they declared that steel costs had been rising all along the line—in freight rates for raw materials, coal and coke, scrap and other items.

The industry itself argued that prices were still too low and that the recent adjustments represented only a trifling increase which the consumer would never notice.

General Increase Denied

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel Corp., issued a statement declaring flatly that "there has been no general increase." His argument was that the price adjustments were on products which constitute only a small (7 per cent) portion of the company's sales.

He said the increase amounted to only about one quarter of a cent per pound and was caused by the

Bankers List 6 Points as Inflation Curbs

Purposes of Loans, Liquidity, Thrift Termed Important

By S. Oliver Goodman
Post Reporter

A six-front attack against high prices and inflationary forces was outlined yesterday to bank chiefs of five nearby States and the District of Columbia.

In an all-day conference at the Willard, sponsored by the American Bankers Association, the financial leaders were told by six speakers:

1. Retain liquidity and an adequate reserve of lending power to use when the present "manufactured prosperity" eventually is deflated.

2. Test whether a proposed loan will boost output or will increase demand for scarce goods and services.

3. Discourage speculative borrowing and unessential loans.

4. Encourage credit that contributes to additional housing, especially in low-cost or moderate-rental fields.

5. Encourage systematic saving, whether in banks or United States bonds.

6. Supply adequate credit to farmers to increase food production.

Yesterday's conference here was the eleventh in a series of 13 "pilot" meetings being held in that many cities across the country to present to the officers of State bankers' associations and other leaders the ABA program for combating inflation.

Action Can Prevent Depression

Principal speakers here were ABA President Joseph M. Dodge, Lester Shippee, chairman of the ABA Credit Policy Commission; Lehman Plummer, chairman of ABA Consumer Credit Committee; L. A. Tobie, president of ABA Savings Division; John D. Hospelhorn, deputy bank commissioner of Maryland and chairman of the executive committee of the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks; Charles T. O'Neill, chairman of ABA Agricultural Commission.

Dodge, the ABA president, said

Costs of Food Here 4% Under All-Time High

Animal Products Cuts Offset in Part By Fruits, Vegetables

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Food costs for the average Washington family were down 4 per cent on Tuesday from an all-time high in January.

Te decline, which followed the commodity market break, was reported yesterday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, in a comparison with 20 selected food costs here on January 13.

Most meats, flour, butter, eggs and lard dropped sharply here during that period, but these reductions were offset in part by increases for onions, oranges, apples, potatoes and coffee, the bureau reported.

May Be Greater Today

Since Tuesday, there have been price increases here generally for such items as butter and eggs, but price cuts have spread on many items and may show a greater reduction today than the bureau listed.

The BLS prices are average costs paid at both chain stores and various kinds of independent stores. Prices paid by BLS shoppers are "weighted" to reflect the proportion of public buying at the particular type of store.

Ewan Clague, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, said normally there is a 1 per cent seasonal decline in retail food prices between January and February.

This would indicate that about 3 per cent of the price drop here could be attributed to what he termed, "anticipation of lower wholesale costs."

In the 12 cities surveyed by the bureau in its anxiously awaited price report, first official version of retail reaction to the market drop, the food decline was between 3 and 4 per cent.

Clague declared that no February reports on retail prices other than foods were yet available, but retail prices of other consumers' goods and services reached new highs in January.

This foreshadows bad news for consumers. "Latest reports from manufacturers," Clague said, "indi-

'Fight to Finish'

House Southerners Vow War On Truman's Rights Program

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

With a low-keyed growl, more ominous than any chorus of rebel yells, 52 House members yesterday announced "a fight to the finish" against President Truman's civil rights program.

Representatives from the 11 original Confederate States met to declare war on the President's anti-lynching, antipoll tax, fair employment commission and antisegregation requests.

They pledged their support to the Southern Governors Conference which met on February 8 and gave the Administration's high command a 40-day ultimatum to change its course.

The protesting Dixie Democrats voted to join the five Southern Governors Tuesday when they lay Southern protests against the President's program before Democratic National Committee Chairman J. Howard McGrath.

Chairman William Colmer (D., Miss.) was authorized to appoint a member of each of the 11 delegations to accompany the governors, whose call for aid led to organization of the Congressional bloc.

The group, in a resolution warned that the success of the party will be jeopardized if the President persists in his course.

The concluding paragraph of the resolution urged, "That the leaders of all who are interested in the success of the Democratic Party be urged and respectfully, but firmly cautioned, against putting into its platform that which would assuredly jeopardize its success in the South, where it has been nourished and sustained throughout its existence."

Colmer and Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) said the House members who attended, signed the document and time is being given those who are out of town to add their signatures.

The States represented yesterday were Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, South Carolina, Arkansas, Georgia, Texas, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia and Florida.

For yesterday's meeting Representatives Howard Smith of Virginia, J. Bayard Clark of North Carolina, Eugene Cox of Georgia, Sam Hobbs of Alabama, Ed Gossett of Texas, James P. Richards of South Carolina, Robert L. F. Sikes of Florida, Colmar and Harris were members of the initial "steering committee."

Little mentioned is one point in the Chief Executive's message which more than any other was resented by the Dixie Democrats—the suggestion of regional offices in the South for enforcement of civil rights.

"Gestapo," is the cry from Dixie throats.

As President Truman flew southward yesterday for a vacation in the Caribbean, he had no comment on Southern dissents. There was no comment either on the conspicuously empty table reserved for the friends of Mrs. Olin D. Johnston, wife of the Senator from South Carolina, nor on her empty place at the head table of Thursday's Jefferson-Jackson dinner here.

Meanwhile a Southern Senator raised the State's rights issue yesterday in opposing enactment of a Federal antilynch law.

Senator Stennis (D., Miss.) told a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee the Federal Government lacks the constitutional power to put such a bill into effect or to enforce it.

Furthermore, he said, this is "not the right method."

Report to Congress

Truman and Marshall Find U. N. 1947 Record a Good One

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

President Truman took a look at the 1947 record of the United Nations yesterday and found it good.

Secretary Marshall also found the U. N.'s record in the past year "a solid contribution to the building of a peaceful and durable world order."

Their summing up of its accomplishments was submitted to Congress with a 359-page printed review of U. N.'s activities and America's participation during the past troubled year.

The President emphasized that international problems arising at U. N. meetings "were met neither by evasion nor by meaningless compromises." Decisions and recommendations on many subjects, he said, "are straightforward expressions of the judgment held by the overwhelming majority of the members on the right and effective course to follow."

Without referring directly to Russia and its satellites, he added: "The small minority holding opposing views on certain important problems, however, have presented to the organization a new question of disturbing character through their nonparticipation in carrying out the recommendations with which these members have disagreed.

"In its handling of fundamental international problems during the past year," he went on, "the United Nations has felt the profound changes in world relationships and the difficulties which we still face in all aspects of international relations.

"Naturally, therefore, its work is not free from disappointments. This is especially true in regard to the establishment of international control of atomic energy for peaceful purposes, and to various political, economic and other prob-

In New Trial Motion

Juror Accused of Misconduct In GI Housing Fraud Trial

An affidavit charging one of the jurors in the George H. Williams housing fraud trial with "misconduct" was filed yesterday in a motion for a new trial.

Williams, 38-year-old Maryland real estate man, was convicted by a District Court jury February 4 on charges of defrauding veterans in a home-building project. He faces a fine of $71,000, a total of 75 years in prison, or both.

One of two affidavits presented to support the new trial motion asserted the juror, John L. Dawson, 41, called Williams "a swindler" publicly after he had been sworn in on the jury.

The second supporting document charged Dawson with misrepresentation in failing to fill out a juror's questionnaire correctly.

Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff said he would withhold action on the new trial motion until March 5, pending an investigation by the District Attorney's office. Assistant U. S. Attorneys Cecil Heflin and Oliver Dibble prosecuted Williams.

An affidavit quoting a Lois Staples, and presented by Williams' Attorney Robert McCullough, said Dawson appeared in the Marathon Restaurant the night before the Williams trial started.

There, Miss Staples said, Dawson told her and two men that "Williams will be lucky if he gets off for less than 25 years" and that "he was satisfied Williams was nothing but a swindler."

She further quoted him as saying "we are not supposed to talk but who is going to know about it."

The second affidavit, signed by McCullough, said the attorney had investigated Dawson's juror questionnaire in which the juror admitted being fined $10 for intoxication. McCullough charged that Dawson's police record also shows four arrests on drunk charges and one for disorderly conduct. These facts did not appear on the questionnaire, the attorney said.

If proved, the affidavits open Dawson to contempt charges. Listed as a mechanic and printer, he lives at 97 Hawaii ave. ne.

Boy, 13, With Gun Terrorizes School Officials 2 Hours

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—A 13-year-old South Richmond boy took a loaded revolver to school today and terrorized officials for two hours—then gave himself up to police without a struggle. No one was injured.

Before he surrendered, however, he threatened to send a woodshop instructor "to the morgue" and police had sent five squad cars to the scene.

L. E. Bush, principal of Bainbridge Junior High School, said today's incident was the aftermath of a bean-shooting episode by the boy.

The boy was taken to the juvenile detention home.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Telling off the Democratic Party is a new role for Mrs. Olin D. Johnston, wife of the junior Senator from South Carolina, who led a stay-away protest against the "no segregation" policy of the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner here last night.

Mrs. Johnson

The tall, slender one-time First Lady of the Palmetto State has stumped the country on behalf of the party, particularly in the fourth-term-for-FDR campaign. But the new role is old stuff to her friends, who insist the word for Gladys Johnston is "outspoken."

Gladys E. Atkinson met Olin D. Johnston at a collegiate conference in Blue Ridge, N. C., 25 years ago. She quit teaching two years later to marry Olin the year he got his law degree. She's been in politics since as his campaign manager.

Only last year Gladys' oratorical skill was given White House recognition. There, during the graduation exercises of the Democratic Speakers School, she was awarded top honors.

Aside from speaking before women's groups in the Washington area, she's a stay-at-home, tending to three growing youngsters, Olin, jr., 11; Sallie Leigh, 10, and Elizabeth, 8.

The Johnstons live in Spartanburg, and reside here at 9506 East Stanhope rd., Rock Creek Hills.

Robert C. Pearce

After 25 years on the Metropolitan Police Force, Capt. Robert C. Pearce has almost abandoned youthful dreams of a medical career.

Pearce

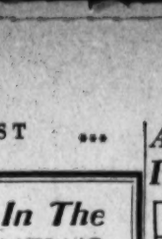
A self-termed coal heaver with the Navy in World War 1, who "tossed enough coal to fill the Municipal Center," Pearce came to the District immediately after that war. With him came a scholarship to study medicine at Georgetown University. But the new finances, or lack of them, prevented that pursuit.

Since then the pursuit has turned to lawbreakers, many years of it in Washington's bustling, downtown Frst Precinct, which he has commanded almost continuously since 1941. While working his way up through the ranks to sergeant, lieutenant and captain, he married Harriett Dale in 1937. They live at 4323 7th st. nw., and have no children.

Now iron-gray and a little on the portly side, Captain Pearce regards as a hobby and pleasant duty his work with the Police Boys Club, for which he helped raise $20,300 this year.

Philip Murray

A fist-fight with a crooked coal mine weighmaster, and a lost strike resulting from the fight, made a union leader out of Philip Murray.



Murray

The future president of the six-million-man CIO was 18 when he had his fight, two years after he came to Pennsylvania from his native Scotland. After that, his rise in the ranks of the United Mine Workers was rapid. He was vice president of the union, second only to John L. Lewis, when the latter organized the CIO.

Murray, with Lewis, walked out of the AFL when the CIO set up on its own. He headed the Steelworkers Organizing Committee and, in 1940, succeeded Lewis in the presidency of the CIO, after a fight with his former leader.

His career, in fact, has been a succession of fights. The present one, to invalidate a prohibition in the Taft-Hartley Act against union political activity, is only the latest in a series.

Murray, now 61, has been uncomfortable in the middle of a left-right split in the CIO. He abhors the Communists but is not too fond of some of their opponents, too full of novel ideas to suit his essentially cnservative, "pure trade unionist" approach. A quip in CIO is that Murray, who dislikes Socialists, defines them as "anyone who is not either a Communist or a former member of the Mine Workers."

Arab Attack In Holy Land

Cash Treaty Asked on Austria

London, Feb. 20 (AP).—The United States, Britain and France insisted today the price for a peace settlement with Austria must be kept within that Nation's ability to pay.

The opening session of the foreign ministers deputies on Austria focused chiefly upon Russia's bill—in terms of cash, oil and shipping—for an agreement.

While Russia and the western powers started far apart on treaty terms, a British observer said there appeared to be "grounds for some confidence" an agreement would be reached.

Thhe deputies sat for two hours trying to sound each other out.

American Deputy Samuel Reber said Russia's outline of her claims would "provide a practical basis" for discussion, conference sources said. He added that any solution must be within Austria's ability to pay and must contain firm guarantees for Austrian freedom and economic independence. In separate statements Britain and France indorsed that position.

American observers said the Russian deputy expressed the Soviet government's interest in obtaining a settlement.

Russia has asked payment by Austria of 200 million dollars in cash, two thirds of Austria's present and undeveloped oil production for 50 years and virtual control of shipping in the Danube in settlement of Russia's claim for Germany's assets in Austria.

Hundreds Die in Flood

Istanbul, Turkey, Feb. 20 (AP).—Press dispatches said today that hundreds of persons have been drowned in a flood devastating south central Turkey.

U. N. Record Is Approved

lems that directly or indirectly affect progress toward attaining international security.

Marshall Not Pessimistic

Secretary Marshall echoed this confidence by saying that "in the presence of international discord" the United Nations had made progress on many issues great and small.

"The record," he said, "offers no basis for complacency, which would overlook the real obstacles that have appeared, especially the repeated inability of the great powers to agree on great questions affecting the security of the world.

"The record offers, on the other hand, no basis for pessimism, which would unrealistically ignore the range of agreement which has been reached."

Judgments on Issues

Here are some of the judgments expressed in the report on notable U. N. issues during the year:

On the Security Council veto, the United States "reluctantly came to the conclusion that the abuse of the requirement of unanimity had prevented the Security Council from fulfilling its true functions, and that the only practical method for improving the situation was through the liberalization of voting procedure in the Security Council."

On International control of atomic energy, the area of agreement is no wider than it was two years ago, and agreements in principle "are larger in appearance than in fact." "Discussion on the basic issues," the report said, "have disclosed that the Soviet Union and Poland have a completely different conception of the most important elements considered by the United States and other members of the majority as essential to an effective system of international control."

In the work of the Economic and Social Council, the report found two "blind alleys" into which this important organ of the U. N. is "in constant danger of being diverted."

One of these was that "enthusiasts" concerned with unimportant subjects often urged the Council to consider them, thus sidetracking more important questions. The other danger was that many issues before the Council were "the subject of widely different and strongly held ideological views."

Red Foes Quit Czech Cabinet

ministers immediately followed suit.

The Social Democrats, who have ecutive committee debated until late tonight. It announced it would stay in the government only if the coalition remains intact. It insisted its action was not anti-Communist.

The crisis was hastened when the Social Democrats voted last night to support the Czech Socialists, Slovak Democrats and Catholic people on broad issues where Communist domination threatened.

The Social Democrat action meant the seven Communists in the cabinet for the first time had the cards stacked against them. The Communists had a majority when the Social Democrats went along with them.

The coalition, called the National Front, was formed at Kosice in April 1945 and has ruled by compromise and bargaining in the absence of a new constitution.

By compromise, Czechoslovakia has avoided being drawn completely into the Soviet orbit as have neighboring countries such as Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Taxpayers Get Extension to Mar. 1

Montgomery County residents who failed to file required personal property tax forms before the January 31 deadline have been given until March 1 to do so.

Persons who fail to file the returns face a possible penalty of $500, he pointed out. Those required to file are business men and farmers who must pay property tax on their office furniture and equipment and farm implements as well as live stock.

Justice of Peace Jailed at Luray

Luray, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—A justice of the peace and town council member at Stanley was jailed here tonight on a charge of taking "a gift or gratuity" in connection with a drunken driving case.

Bond for the justice, C. K. Hackley of Stanley, six miles south of here, will be set at a hearing tomorrow morning. He was arrested on a warrant sworn out by I. R. Dovel, Commonwealth attorney, on the basis of an undisclosed complaint.

CIO Official to Fly To Moscow for Talks

London, Feb. 20 (AP).—James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, plans to fly to Moscow this weekend to discuss "the critical situation" that has arisen in connection with the Marshall Plan and the World Federation of Trade Unions.

Vassili Kuznetsov, president of the Soviet Trade Union Central Committee, cabled he would be glad to see Carey in Moscow.

The situation was brought to a head when the WFTU executive canceled a "Marshall Plan meeting" the middle of this month. Then two days ago Britain's Trades Union Congress called a conference of Marshall Plan states in London March 8.

Korean Red Rule to Balk U. N. Report

Seoul, Feb. 20 (AP).—A high United States military authority said today the Russians are openly forming a Communist government in North Korea "aimed directly at the United Nations."

"This throws down the gauntlet to the United Nations and indicates the Soviets are prepared to declare a government in North Korea before the United Nations can complete any action here," said the official, who didn't wish to be named.

Chairman K. P. S. Menon of the U. N. commission of Korea, said at Lake Success a news story about a Russian puppet government in North Korea "appears to have caused misunderstanding." Menon added the regime "was established before the U. N. commission was thought of and it could not have been set up to render the U. N. impotent."

However, the U. S. military source called attention today to a February 8 broadcast from Pyongyang, Russia occupation headquarters. The radio described establishment of a peoples army, promulgation of a constitution and creation of a flag with a red star, hammers and sickles.

On February 12, the radio said the constitution is to be acted upon by the North Korean people's council in mid-March.

"It will be approved, all right," said the American source. "That will be the completion of a Communist government for North Korea."

Terminal Fireman Freed in Fight Death

Irvin Utz, 28-year-old Washington Terminal fireman, was acquitted yesterday of a manslaughter charge resulting from the death of a Maryland Park man in a tavern brawl in Capitol Heights, Md., February 10.

Utz, who lives at 403 65th st., Maryland Park, was freed in the death of Edwin E. Mills, 29, 6402 E st., who died of head injuries five days after he was struck by Utz during an altercation over payment of a tavern check. Judge Alan Bowie, sitting in Upper Marlboro, Md., Police Court, dismissed the charge after several witnesses testified Mills was the aggressor in the fight.

Rent Control Extension for Month Likely

One month's extension of the present rent control law appeared certain yesterday as the Senate opened debate on new legislation to extend controls on rental housing another 14 months.

Acting Senate Leader Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) said he hoped the Senate would act on Monday, despite the rash of amendments which broke out yesterday.

Although the Senate can act in time to meet the February 29 deadline when the present law expires, there is insufficient time for the House to act and both sides to reach agreement.

Floor manager for the Senate bill was Senator Harry Cain (R., Wash.), chairman of a subcommittee which recommended sharply modified controls.

Cain opened a 3½-hour speech by telling the Senate, "there is no actual shortage of housing. There is merely a desperate shortage of housing which is for rent."

Stressing the "increasingly desperate plight" of landlords, Cain said rent controls have forced rental housing off the market.

Would Modify Controls

Cain was outvoted in the full Banking and Currency Committee which reported a stronger bill than he favored. He said he would not offer but would support amendments to modify the controls.

Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.) expressed amazement at such a speech from the floor manager of the legislation, and pointed out that the Supreme Court last Monday upheld rent control.

Senator Arthur V. Watkins (R., Utah) also wanted to know why Cain belittled the need for the legislation.

Senator Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.) was critical of a new section of the bill authorizing criminal penalties for wilful violations of the rent control regulations.

Millikin said he feared this section might be "used as a bludgeon" to force honest landlords to "do dishonest things to avoid the threat of a criminal proceeding."

Cain explained that criminal action could be brought only with the approval of the Attorney General.

Ives, Baldwin Urge Amendments

Senators Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) and Raymond Baldwin (R., Conn.) urged three amendments.

1. They urged that the committee designation "luxury apartments," from which controls are removed, be changed from those renting for $225 a month and up to those renting for $400 a month and up.

2. They asked return of rent controls on nonhousekeeping rooms in private homes.

3. They demanded that residential hotel apartments be put back under control.

Senator Joseph R. McCartny (R., Wis.) offered an amendment giving the State the right to take over the operation of rent control if the Governor could show the State had an "adequate" rent control law of its own.

McCartny also sought to restore controls over the use of scarce building materials for recreational and amusement places, such as dance halls and bowling alleys.

The Senate bill would extend control through April, 1949, and permit 15 per cent "voluntary" increases if landlord and tenant agreed on a lease through December, 1949.

Gen. Meyers Asks Disqualification of Holtzoff for Trial

Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, retired Air Force procurement officer, asked Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff yesterday to disqualify himself from presiding at Meyers' perjury trial.

He said Holtzoff would be prejudiced in favor of the Government because of his 20 years of service in the Justice Department before his appointment to the Federal bench in 1945.

Meyers has been indicted on charges of lying to a congressional committee in connection with his alleged $130,000 "kickback" profits from a wartime aviation firm.

He also is accused of prompting Bleriot H. Lamarre, self-styled $50-a-week "dummy president" of the aviation firm, to lie to congressional investigators.

Arguments on Meyers' petition probably will be heard on March 11, the date set for him to stand trial on the direct charge of perjury.

His trial on the charge involving Lamarre is scheduled to begin next Tuesday.

Jewish Center to Open

Ceremonies opening the new $80,000 Arlington Jewish Center at Lee blvd. and South Fenwick st. will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. The symbolic ribbon will be cut by President Harry H. Goldstein. Eight Younk European DPs Prove Value Of Work They are Doing in U. S. 'Exhibit'

The Washington Post

Eight young displaced persons from Europe who have found new lives in this country were in Washington yesterday as "exhibits" for the Citizens' Committee on Displaced Persons and for Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.).

Their appearance proved the committee's declaration that "DPs are human beings"—and likeable ones—while Senator Ferguson declared:

"We wanted to show what valuable contributions some of these people are making to our economy."

One of the DP's, a 4-year-old boy known only as "Peter" when he arrived in this country, will be the adopted son of Mrs. Clayton Forshee of 722 Kennebec ave., Takoma Park. He was found by UNRRA officials in Germany suffering from club feet, which were cured in a series of operations in Germany and at Johns Hopkins.

Blonde, 22-year-old Ireene Hass, a Polish Jewess who spent two years in three Nazi concentration camps, displayed a two-inch scar on her arm, which she described as "one of those things behind the mystic curtain of my past."

It was, she explained, a scar left by plastic surgery which removed her concentration camp number A15467 formerly tattooed there. She said it was a hateful reminder of Lublin, Auschwitz and Buchenwald. At the time she was tattooed, however, "it meant I was one of the lucky ones assigned to work, so at least temporarily it also meant I would not be sent to the gas chambers."

Employed as Translator

Miss Hass, who expects to become a bacteriologist on graduation from Hunter College, earns $55 a week as a translator and attends classes at night.

Evald Roosaare, 32, an Estonian, said he wanted to study journalism and law here to continue his previous professions in Estonia.

Mrs. Ina Januskevics, 24, a Latvian, is a waitress in a New York restaurant while her husband is in line for a job at the Rochester Institute of Technology as a photographer, she said.

With her husband in the Army and aiming at the medical profession, Mrs. Elizabeth Borchardt, 22, is studying at Barnard College under a full scholarship. Estonian Miss Silva Mardiste also received a scholarship at Bennington College. Egil Hermanovsky, 30, a Latvian, an artist and architect, is now a store designer.

7 Judges Whittle Case Backlog in Distrct Court

Seven judges, two from the Municipal Court of Appeals, yesterday began whittling at a backlog of 935 cases in Municipal Court's civil division.

The seven, sitting simultaneously, disposed of 25 jury cases in yesterday's sessions and issued preliminary calls for 199 more today.

At least 400 attorneys are expected in court today to answer to the call to determine how many of the cases are ready for trial. Also scheduled for today are arguments on 21 contested motions.

Justices sitting yestetrday were Chief Judge Nathan Cayton and Brice Clagett, from the Court of Appeals; Chief Judge George P. Barse; Walter H. Casey, Aubrey B. Fennell, John P. McMahon and Thomas Dewey Quinn, from Municipal Court.

Army Returns Gems Stolen By Its Agents

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Nine United States Army counterintelligence agents, acting on a tip from a German police official, stole a buried fortune in jewelry belonging to a German countess in 1945, and the gems now are being returned to her, the Army disclosed today.

Army officials here said the men have returned to civilian life and that none has been prosecuted.

The Army said the jewelry belonged to Countess Nina von Stauffenberg, widow of Count Blaus von Stauffenberg, who nearly killed Adolf Hitler with a bomb July 20, 1944. She claimed the gems were worth $250,000.

Gestapo looters helped themselves to most of the trove, and the Americans apparently took the rest, she said.

The countess itemized 100 pieces of jewelry.

Strong Confers Again With Both Sides in GSI Strike

Attorney George E. Strong conferred for the fifth straight day yesterday with both sides of the Government Services, Inc., cafeteria dispute.

Appointed conciliator by Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming, Strong said he had not yet brought GSI together with the striking union, Local 471 of the UPW-CIO. He said there had been "some progress." The strike went into its forty-eighth day today.

GSI refuses to negotiate a new contract with the local until the national union, United Public Workers of America, file non-Communist affidavits. GSI also argues that it cannot rehire some 1000 workers who have been replaced since the strike began on January 5. The union asks a wage increase of 15 cents an hour.

Klan-Defying Coach Fired Or Suspended

Lakeview, Ga., Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Walter Bowland, ex-marine high school coach who has been carrying on an public feud with the Ku Klux Klan, said today he had been fired but apparently he was technically in error.

He hasn't actually been fired yet, nor has he been suspended. But Miss Ruth Williams, Catoosa County superintendent of schools, said he would be suspended "very shortly."

The 27-year-old coach and Miss Williams had a brief, heated exchange outside the school today. Said she:

"Mr. Bowland, I have just seen a headline in the paper that says youw have been fired. I am the only person in the county who can notify you that you have been fired. But I'll tell you one thing, you'll receive a notice very shortly that you have been suspended until the board of education meets the first Tuesday of next month.

"All this publicity is disgraceful. I told Mr. Burks (John Burks, the high school principal) several weeks ago to get you to shut your 'D' mouth but you didn't do it."

Principal Burks reported he had resigned in protest of the action against the coach. Bowland's wife quit her job at the school cafeteria.

Coach Bowland reported several days ago the Klan had threatened to "get" him. He armed himself with a pistol at a basketball game in nearby Rossville Tuesday night. There was no disturbance.

The coach said Klansmen had told him he must either leave town or be tarred and feathered. Several weeks ago Bowland reported the Klan's cross had been burned on his lawn. His pregnant wife, alone at the time, kicked over the cross and called the robed men "yellow cowards."

Bowland blamed the Klan threats on a fight he had at the Lakeview gymnasium with a former student. He said the student attempted to interrupt baskestball practice.

In Atlanta, Dr. Samuel Green, Georgia grand dragon of the Klan, said Klansmen were not involved.

"Bowland has been using the newspapers to get publicity," Green said, "and the offer of a job somewhere. He was fired because he brought all this about himself."

Two Priests Executed

Vatican City, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—Vatican sources said today two Roman Catholic bishops have been executed in Albania, and a third has been sentenced to 20 years in prison. Two Franciscan monks also have been doomed by a People's Court in Albania, the informants added.

U. S. Ruling Held Condoning Death For Greek Rebels

Berlin, Feb. 20 (A.P.).—The Russian-controlled newspaper Berliner Zeitung charged today that a ruling of a United States war crimes court was intended to justify the killing of Communists in the present Greek civil war.

The decision was given at Nuernberg yesterday during the sentencing of eight German military leaders who commanded Balkan occupation forces.

Hostages may be killed to maintain order, but only if the individuals selected bear some relation to the crime against the occupiers, the tribunal ruled.

The ruling, the newspaper declared, was "de jure and de facto justification to the bestial warfare of the SS (Elite Guard) in subjugated countries, and represents a dagger thrust to those people who suffered heavily in the fighting against fascism."

Details Kept From Marshall

we would be faced with a very serious situation in Japan," the Secretary answered.

"How did it come about that we invited Russia to take over the ports of Manchuria?" Judd went on.

This brought the Secretary's answer that he had been unaware of the political "details" decided at Yalta. He said the Chiefs of Staff at the time had been anxious to get Russia committed to a campaign against Japan on the Manchurian border.

He recalled that he had concerned himself at Yalta with military matters only, and he hinted, without saying so directly, that details of the political agreement had been kept secret from him until later.

Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes told a similar story in his book, "Speaking Frankly," saying that he had not learned of the secret agreement until after President Roosevelt's death. Byrnes, like Marshall, had been at Yalta as one of the President's advisers.

Opposes Closing Consulates

The real difficulty with the Yalta agreement, Marshall went on, was that it had not been kept, just as the Potsdam agreement of a few months later had not been kept by Russia. But he frowned on a suggestion from Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) that the United States close Soviet consulates here in retaliation for the Soviet refused to reopen prewar American consulates in Russia.

While such Soviet tactics are "disagreeable," Marshall said, the United States must always "weigh the end result" and try to get a "reasonable settlement of these matters."

As for the 570-million-dollar program, Marshall said in a prepared statement that it was needed to give the Chinese government a "breathing space" in which to correct some of the present chaotic conditions in China.

Criticizes Chiang

He was severe in criticizing the Chiang Kai-shek regime, saying the civil war demanded "a high order of aggressive leadership in all major echelons of command, which is lacking."

He said there was no way of telling when the need for relief to China would end, whereas the European Recovery Program was based upon the prospect of American help ending in 4¼ years. As for a currency stabilization fund, he felt it would "require large sums which would be largely dissipated under the present conditions of war financing and civil disruption."

Again and again he insisted that it was up to the Chinese government to tackle its "fundamental problems," such as broadening the base of the government, stamping out graft, and paying attention to the plight of the peasants.

Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) was critical of the program, described it once as "three drops of water to make the Sahara bloom," and later as "going over there with a panful of dollars and trifling with one of the most difficult situations we have ever encountered."

Pressure to Call MacArthur

It was Eaton who disclosed pressure from unnamed Congressmen to call MacArthur to Washington to testify on help for China. He asked whether Marshall thought it necessary "to use so big a gun to fire so small a shot."

"General MacArthur is the best judge of what he knows about China," said Marshall, "and it's up to you gentlemen to decide what you want to ask him."

Representative John Kee (D., W. Va.) thought MacArthur was too busy to be called; Representative Pete Jarman (D., Ala.) with an implied dig at the MacArthur-for-President backers, thought "the purpose of some people who want him to testify would not be served by having him come."

Later it developed that Representatives John Vorys (R., Ohio), Bartel Jonkman (R., Mich.), and Judd were among those who wanted MacArthur called. Representative Lawrence Smith (R., Wis.) submitted a resolution to summon MacArthur, but Democratic members blocked it because of lack of a quorum.

Psychological Effect Feared From Steel Price Increase

"cumulative effect of past cost increases." It applied, he said, only to products which in the past had been sold at a loss.

"It has nothing to do with any future wage demands, and should not be understood as indicating any trend in general steel prices," he asserted.

There was a wealth of unofficial argument in Washington yesterday on these various points.

Bargaining Effect

On the wage matter, it was pointed out that Fairless could scarcely argue against the steelworkers' union, when it shortly begins negotiations for higher wages, to the effect that it should abate its demands because of the prospect of declining prices and a weak market. Fairless' own price action, it was asserted, was a flat contradiction of this theme.

On the question of the direct effect on the prices of finished steel products, economists here expressed ignorance.

If, as Fairless hinted, steel fabricators can absorb the increase, the price of finished goods to consumers will not change. But if, as steel finishers in Pittsburgh said would be the case, they will have to add to their prices because of increased costs, then it is probable that even the big, integrated companies will follow. Then all steel prices will be higher.

Actually, the big companies which raised prices of the semi-finished products they sell to fabricators—blooms, billets, ingots, slabs, etc.—have recently raised the prices of many finished products.

Charles M. White, president of Republic Steel, declared yesterday that steel prices were still too low, and that the recent increases were made to compensate for last year's wage increases.

Arguing to the contrary, Chairman J. Howard McGrath of the Democratic National Committee said the steel action was "irresponsible" and reflected a philosophy of "get yours while the getting is good."

The action, he declared, would add to the "already dangerously high cost of living," and proved that Congress must enact President Truman's anti-inflation program.

Alluding to the same issue—the effect of the price increase in convincing the public that inflationary pressure still remains—one Government economist quipped that the announcement of the increase proves that "the steel industry is run by Democrats." His inference was that although the drop in grain prices seemed to give a death blow to the Administration inflation control program, the steel action revived it.

Truman Explains Reference to 'T. R.'

Both Roosevelts Were Liberals, He Says, on Arrival in Flordia

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Key West, Fla., Feb. 20.—President Truman arrived in Florida on his way to the Caribbean this afternoon, and in a plane-side interview nominated Theodore Roosevelt as a political hero for the second time.

This time it was no mistake.

As Mr. Truman came down the ladder from the Sacred Cow, a reporter asked him about the peroration of his Mayflower Hotel speech Thursday night in which he listed the Republican Party's T. R. along with Democratic heroes Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson.

"Was it a slip of the tongue, Mr. President?" the reporter asked.

"Do I have to answer that?" Mr. Truman asked, grinning.

The reporter said nothing.

"Theodore Roosevelt," Mr. Truman then volunteered, "belongs in the same class with Franklin Roosevelt. He was a liberal, too."

He added that he meant "all the Roosevelts."

On Two-Week Trip

The Chief Executive, who is embarked on a two-week trip that will take him to Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, was given a friendly welcome here in Key West. Men, women and children, scantily dressed in the 77-degree temperature, waved to him as he drove to the United States Submarine Base from Boca Chica Airfield. A troop of Girl Scouts turned out with flags. Nuns from the Convent of Mary Immaculate assembled outside their walled garden to join in the greeting.

If any in this Southernmost city of the United States were bitter over Mr. Truman's fight against Jim Crowism they kept it to themselves.

Fourth Trip South

"Say some good things about him," a woman yelled, apparently with Mr. Truman in mind, as the bus labeled "Press" moved along.

Another woman, apparently a Federal worker, cried: "Let's get that raise, boys."

The President, making his fourth trip to Key West, rode in from the airfield in an open car with flags flying from its front bumper. He was wearing a blue worsted suit and western hat, which he quickly discarded once he reached his quarters at the Commandant's House.

Mr. Truman planned to turn in early, since he is scheduled to take off in the Sacred Cow for San Juan at 4 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Myers "Along for the Ride"

The presidential plane, on its trip of 4 hours and 51 minutes from Washington, was in command of Col. Francis W. (Frenchy) Williams, Mr. Truman's new pilot. However, Lieut. Col. Henry T. (Hank Myers was in the cockpit. Myers an old hand at flying Presidents and other notables, soon will rejoin American Air Lines. He came along this time "for the ride."

In Mr. Truman's party are Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, his Chief of Staff; Secretaries Matthew J. Connelly and William D. Hassett; Assistant to the President John R. Steelman; Counsel Clark M. Clifford; State Department Protocol Officer Stanley Woodward; Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Army aide; Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, White House physician; Col. Robert B. Landry, Air Force aide; Capt. Robert L. Dennison, Navy aide; Eben Ayers, assistant press secretary; Lieut. Comdr. William M. Rigdon, assistant naval aide; Second Lieut. J. P. Leveritt, Jack Romagna, assistant to Secretary Connelly; Dewey Long, White House transportation officer, and secret service men.

Truman Picks Coast Lawyer For CAB Post

Harold A. Jones, Los Angeles lawyer, was nominated by President Truman yesterday to one of the two vacancies on the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Other nominations sent to the Senate for confirmation:

Monnett B. Davis of Colorado, to be Ambassador to Panama.

Richard P. Butrick of New York to be Minister to Iceland.

Jones' nomination is for the remainder of a six-year term expiring December 31, 1952. He is 49, a native of Jackson, Ohio.

Jones attended Ohio State and Yale Universities. He has practiced law in Cleveland and Los Angeles. At one time he was an Assistant Attorney General of the antitrust division, Department of Justice.

Jones served in both World Wars and in the last war was with the Office of Startegic Services. He also served with the office of the Coordinator of Information in Australia, New Zealand and South Pacific.

Bikini Natives Moving Again, To Kwajalein

Honolulu, T. H., Feb. 20 (U.P.).—The 160 unhappy natives who sacrificed their Likini Atoll to the Atomic Age are going to move again.

Ever since they left Bikini two years ago to make way for the two atomic bomb test explosions, the natives have complained they are being haunted constantly by "Libokra," a malicious and poisonous spirit.

They believe Rongerik Atoll, their poresent home, is an evil place. They brought considerable pressure and the Navy has agreed to move them to a new island. Officers are ignoring the stories about evil spirits, however. They are planning to mave the natives to Kwajalein Island because food is more pleniful there.

The Navy said the move to Kwajalein would be only "temporary."

An anthropologist has recommended that the natives be transferred to Kili Atoll, an uninhabited island in the southern Marshalls with more resources than exist on Rongerik.

The natives would like most of all to go back to their old homes on Bikini, but Navy officals are certain the atomic bomb tests made Bikini even more, dangerous than Rongerik Island ever could be, even with evil spirits.

Costs of Food Down 4% Here

cates no widespread declines and some advances."

BLS officials declined to forecast the probable effect of commodity market breaks on the over-all cost of living, but stated that the tendency is for industrial commodities to fluctuate far less than agricultural products.

The decline in food prices, they declared, is not quite so sharp as was the price drop in the first month of the 1920 break in living costs.

In mid-January, Clague said, not only was the general cost of living at a record peak, but each single category, food, apparel, rent, fuel-electricity-ice, house furnishings and miscellaneous hit all-time levels.

In comparison with the 4 per cent drop in food prices here between January 13 and February 17, average retail costs were unchanged in Los Angeles, primarily because of a milk increase, while the decline in Chicago, major market center, reached 5 per cent.

The greatest national increase on a single item—onions—was caused by a small supply, the BLS said. Meat prices as a whole, the BLS said, are normally at their lowest point in February, while retail food prices as a whole reach their seasonal low in March and rise steadily through October.

'Phantom' Sailor Managed Waves

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
JAMES L. TELFER, 23, charged by the Navy with desertion from the Treasure Island Naval Base, San Francisco, was there all the time. He had been living for two years in empty barracks, afraid to go to regular messes, a Navy spokesman said. When picked up, Telfer was using the name of James L. Johnson and was managing the Wave softball team. A job he held as pinboy in the base's bowling alley gave him enough money to eat in ship's service

Carol Loses Citizenship In Romania

Bucharest, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Romanian cabinet withdrew the Romanian citizenship of former King Carol toady and confiscated his entire fortune in this country.

The action was taken for Carol's alleged slander of the Romanian state.

(Carol, long in exile, said in Lisbon January 11 he believed the decision of his son, King Mihai, to abdicate, "must have been forced" on him. Romania was proclaimed a "people's republic" by its Communist-dominated government after the abdication.)

Carol was one of 35 Romanians abroad against whom the cabinet acted.

Painting Sale Held Fraud

London, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—A jury ruled today that American multi-millionaire, Maj. Horace Elgin Dodge, does not have to pay for a painting an attractive woman allegedly persuaded him to buy for $27,200 while he was drunk at a party.

had been robbed and clubbed on the head.

By early yesterday, they had sufficient information and four robbery squad detectives led the other policemen to the 4th st. address. Besides Bonaccorsy and Hunt, they were Sergts. Otto P. Fuss and James Roache.

Brought into Municipal Court later yesterday, Ward was charged with robbery and held for action of the grand jury under $10,000 bond after United States Attorney James McKay told Judge George D. Neilson that kidnap charges were also being studied.

Held in $10,000 Bond

Grant was sent to the District Jail with Ward, pending action by the Juvenile Court on the question of waiving its jurisdiction.

Police charged Ward with robbery, force and violence against Selby and Larrick. The same charges were placed against Grant in the Selby and Suburban Liquor Store cases.

Asked to Reenact Scene

The two youths were taken to Seat Pleasant, Md., yesterday afternoon to reenact the taping of Selby to a tree with adhesive tape after he was robbed. According to police, Ward said, the spot was chosen because he had once obtained a Christmas tree there and he was familiar with the woods.

Police found Grant asleep and Ward hiding in a closet of the apartment to which their investigation had led them. Selby's watch and Elk's pin were found, along with a .38-caliber Colt, detectives said. They quoted Ward as saying he took $140 of the night's loot, giving Grant and the third man $90 apiece. They had been drinking "sneaky Pete" wine Wednesday, they told police.

Expectant Mother Is Found Dead Beside Open Jets

Baltimore, Feb. 20 (AP).—A young expectant mother was found dead today alongside a kitchen range with the jets open and beside her were a Bible opened to the Twenty-third Psalm and two notes scrawled across incompleted birth announcements.

Patrolmen Herman Arnold and Robert Alban said William Freburger told them he and his wife sat in the basement until 3:25 a. m., arguing about her keeping late hours.

He took their 11-month-old son to bed. The baby's cries awakened him two hours later and he found his 23-year-old wife beside the stove.

$40,000 Set as Church Goal For World Aid

A minimum goal of $30,000 has been set for the Diocese of Washington as its share in the Presiding Bishop's Fund for World Relief in 1948, Bishop Angus Dun announced last night.

Episcopal churches throughout the country have pledged themselves to raise a million dollars for foreign relief each year for the three years between general conventions. This is the second year of the undertaking and the diocese raised nearly $32,000 in 1947 toward the $1,093,312 Nation-wide Episcopal giving.

The money is used for food, clothing, farm supplies, medicines, temporary church shelters and church repairs, Bibles and prayerbooks, as well as for aid to the clergy and some work with displaced persons.

In this country the Episcopal Church joins with 21 other American churches in contributing funds and supplies through the facilities of Church World Service which is recognized by the Government and others as the central foreign relief agency of the Protestant and Eastern orthodox churches. Distribution in Europe and Asia is through the same organization which operates through the World Council of Churches.

'State of the Church'

"The State of the Protestant Church" will be the Rev. George E. Schnabel's sermon topic tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Albright Memorial Evangelical Church, 4th and Rittenhouse sts. nw.

D. C. Pastors Have Wives to Be Proud Of

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Washington ministers have reason to be proud of their wives, those loyal guardians of the parsonage who frequently spark a man's success.

The wives teach Sunday School classes; substitute for their husbands in the pulpit; help them in pastoral counseling when a woman's advice is needed, and coach them on wedding etiquette. Moreover, they interrupt their daily domestic routine to answer floods of phone queries about church activities. They share the bouquets and brickbats that are part and parcel of parsonage life.

Take Mrs. J. Warren Hastings, the attractive wife of the pastor of National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle. She and Dr. Hastings were classmates at Lynchburg (Va.), College. When he decided on further study at Yale Divinity School, Mrs. Hastings took a religious education course in the Divinity School. After she got her Master's degree in religious education at Yale in 1926, and the pastor received his Bachelor of Divinity degree there in 1927, the pastoral couple sailed for Scotland. Mrs. Hastings stayed with her husband for two of the three years of his studies at the University of Edinburgh. She returned home to care for their infant daughter, Jacqueline, now a University of Maryland student. Another daughter, Jo Anne, born in 1929, is a student at Lynchburg College.

The pastoral comradeship between Dr. and Mrs. Hastings has continued throughout their ministry. When Dr. Hastings was pastor of the University Christian Church in Seattle, Wash., from 1934 to 1942, Mrs. Hastings frequently occupied his pulpit and spoke to students at the University of Washington in Seattle. She has just returned from speaking engagements in Blacksburg, Va. During January she spoke at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., and at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, at "University Missions," sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches. When Dr. Hastings went on a preaching tour a short time ago, Mrs. Hastings took over his pulpit here.

Mrs. Hung Active

Mrs. C. C. Hung, wife of the pastor of the Chinese Community Church, 1911 L st. nw., has just passed her District of Columbia bar "exams" after several years' study at Southeastern University, 18th and G sts. nw.

Among the city's most active churchwomen, Mrs. Hung is interested in the Federation of Churches, Washington Council of Churchwomen and other organizations. She frequently teaches Sunday School classes. The Hungs have two boys. Wellington, 15, is a Central High School student. Kenny, 12, attends Langley Junior High School. Mrs. Hung is a native of San Francisco and holds a degree from the University of California. She and Dr. Hung met at a student conference in San Francisco. He was then a Columbia University student. The Hungs came here in 1935 to take over the Chinese Community Church Work.

Christ Church To Celebrate 175th Year

Services to celebrate the 175th anniversary of Christ Episcopal Church, Alexandria, will highlight tomorrow's religious observance of Washington's Birthday.

It was at Christ Church that Washington was a vestryman from 1767 to 1773, and his pew—No. 60—is still preserved there. Washington bought the most expensive pew in the church for 36 pounds, 10 shillings.

Service to Be Broadcast

The service at 11 a. m. at Christ Church will feature Washington's favorite prayers and hymns. It will be broadcast over WPIK and WPIK-FM.

From tonight until February 29, the exterior of the old red brick Christ Church in downtown Alexandria will be flood-lighted for the first time in its history. The Rev. Braxton Bragg Comer Llle is rector, and the Rev. Oren Van Tuyl Chamberlain, assistant rector.

Washington's Birthday also will mark the start of the annual 'Brotherhood Week" of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. The local observance will be sponsored by the Washington Rountable, NCCJ.

Cathedral Service

"George Washington, the Churchman," will be the sermon theme of Canon Librarian George J. Cleaveland at 11 a. m. at the Washington Cathedral.

St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, 18th and Church sts. nw., will mark the occasion at a religious-patriotic service at 11 a. m., conducted by the Rev. Harold B. Sedgwick, new rector. The prayer for the United States that was written by Washington during the Revolution will be offered.

"The Spiritual Basis of Brotherhood" will be Dr. Bernard Braskamp's sermon theme at a "Brotherhood Sunday" service at 11 a. m. at Gunton-Temple Memorial Presbyterian Church, 16th and Newton sts. nw.

Brotherhood Film

A film entitled "Don't Be a Sucker," starring Paul Lucas, will be shown tomorrow at 7 p. m. by the Young Adult Fellowship of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw., in observance of "Brotherhood Week."

School Lenten Series Sponsored at Churches

Two communities are sponsoring weekly Lenten services for school children.

Services for Georgetown children are being held at 8:30 a. m. Tuesdays at Georgetown Lutheran Church, Wisconsin ave. and Volta pl. nw. Tenleytown churches are sponsoring services at 8:30 a. m. Thursdays at St. Columba's Episcopal Church, 42d and Albemarle sts. nw.

French Services Speaker

The Rev. Pierre C. Tourelle will speak at services of the Washington French Congregation tomorrow at 4 p. m. at St. John's Episcopal Church, 16th and H sts. nw.

Pastor Learns 'Mike' Tricks

The Washington Post

ADVICE—"Don't get too close to the 'mike'!" Miss Elinor Inman, of New York City, director of religious programs for the Columbia Broadcasting System, cautions the Rev. J. Adrian Pfeiffer at a radio workshop this week at the Central Union Mission, 613 C st. nw. It was sponsored by the Washington Ministerial Union. Mr. Pfeiffer is chairman of the Federation of Churches' radio committee and pastor of Takoma Lutheran Church, 7th and Dahlia sts. nw

Laymen Hold Rites Tomorrow

Two Chevy Chase congregations will observe annual "Laymen's Day" tomorrow.

Andrew H. Phelps, widely known Pittsburgh layman, will address services at 11 a. m. at Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Jocelyn st. nw. He is vice president of the Westinghouse Corporation and attended Wesley Church during his residence here from 1921 to 1927. He is lay leader of the Pittsburgh Methodist Conference, a trustee of Mount Lebanon Church there and president of the National Association for a United Church of America.

Arthur S. Flemming, Civil Service commissioner and Federation of Churches president, will speak at 11 a. m. at Chevy Chase Methodist Church. Perry T. Burton and Mrs. Harry A. Jager also will participate in that service. There will be a similar service at 9:30 a. m. in charge of the Rev. W. Harold Snape, director of the Washington Goodwill Industries, in charge. Judge Charles S. Woodward, of the Montgomery County Court and prominent Methodist layman, will speak. George E. Harris, charge lay leader of Chevy Chase Methodist Church, will introduce the speakers. Dr. Clifford Homer Richmond is pastor.

Georgetown U. Alumni Communion Mass Set

The annual Communion mass of the Washington Chapter of the Alumni Association of Catholic University will be held March 14 at 9 a. m. in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception on the campus, with a breakfast to follow in the dining hall.

The Right Rev. Msgr. Edward B. Jordan, vice rector of the university, will celebrate the mass. The speaker at the breakfast will be Dr. William H. Russell, associate professor of religious education and member of the class of 1921.

Prelate to Help Install Keough

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of the Washington Archdiocese will participate in installation rites for the Most Rev. Francis J. Keough as Archbishop of Baltimore Tuesday at 10 a. m.

The Washington Archbishop will address the luncheon of the clergy following the installation ceremonies in the Basilica of the Assumption of the Most Blessed Mary. Parish and other priests of the Washington Archdiocese also have been invited. Four archbishops and 28 bishops have accepted invitations to attend.

Laymen who have been invited include the Maryland delegation to Congress, Governor Lane and other State officials, Mayor D'Alesandro and city council of Baltimore and heads of Catholic societies.

D. C. Rally to Hear Woman Evangelist From Glasgow

Mrs. Beryl Lewis, an avangelist from Glasgow, Scotland, will address a joint rally of Holiness churches today at 7 p. m. at the First Church of the Nazarene, 7th and A sts. northeast.

Mrs. Lewis

Mrs. Lewis, Australian-born, is the wife of a Scottish clergyman. She was formerly president of the World for Christ Crusade, a youth movement.

Participating in the rally will be members of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, the Free and Wesleyan Methodist, Woodridge Pilgrim and other churches.

British M. P. to Speak

Rhys J. Davies, Labor member of the British Parliament, will address the current problems class of All Souls' Unitarian Church tomorrow at 9:45 a. m. in Pierce Hall, 15th and Harvard sts. nw.

BIBLE

Golden Jubilee

Rev. Parkman To Celebrate Ordination

The Rev. Henry Converse Parkman, a retired Episcopal clergyman, at 11 a. m. tomorrow will celebrate the golden jubilee of his ordination by preaching at Trinity Episcopal Church, Piney Branch rd. and Dahlia st. nw.

Mr. Parkman became interested in the ministry in 1891, while attending a Brotherhood of St. Andrew convention in St. Louis as delegate from St. Mark's Episcopal Church, 3d and A sts. se. Upon returning from the convention, he started a mission at 312 K st. ne., from which grew the present church of the Good Shepherd.

After serving in home missionary work in New Mexico, he became assistant rector of Christ Church, Indianapolis. For 20 years before his retirement in 1940 he was vicar of St. James' Church, Indian Head, Md. During the war years he served as a chaplain with the rank of lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve. He and his wife live at Hillandale, Silver Spring. On the first Sunday of each month Mr. Parkman assists the Rev. Robert S. Trenbath in the services at Trinity Church.

Mass for Lithuanians

Members of the American Lithuanian Society of Washington will commemorate Lithuanian Day tomorrow with mass at 10 a.m. at Immaculate Conception Church, 8th and N sts. nw. Breakfast will follow at the Crescent Cafe, 1338 New York ave. nw.

Counties Get DST Approval In Va. Senate

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—The State Senate today voted authority to Alexandria and Arlington and Fairfax Counties to establish and enforce daylight saving time.

In the House of Delegates members passed a bill to separate hunting and fishing licenses, increasing to $6.50 a resident sportsman's fee if he wishes to do both. The measure provides for a $3 fishing license and $3.50 hunting license in lieu of the $3 fee for the present double privilege license.

In other legislative moves yesterday, these actions stood out:

1. The Senate finance committee reported out favorably after a hearing the bill to restore the two per cent gross receipts tax on motor freight carriers, repealed in 1946 as a reciprocity measure.

2. The Senate banking committee reported by vote of seven to three the bill to restrict branch banking. It rejected an amendment which would have permitted the Bank of Virginia (Morris Plan) further to expand in cities where it already has branches.

3. The House courts of justice committee took under consideration five bills to eliminate race segregation in public carriers and in public assembly places after a crowded public hearing.

4. The Senate unanimously passed a bill by Arlington's Senator Charles R. Fenwick to permit transfer of dangerously incorrigible boys to public institutions outside the State. It is aimed at providing institutional care between the level of ndustrial school and the penitentiary, not now available in Virginia.

U. S. Orders Oil Export Licenses

The Commerce Department yesterday banned export of crude oil without a license to any foreign country except Canada.

It was the first peacetime imposition of license controls on crude oils. It was also the second action in as many days to bolster scarce supplies of fuel at home by squeezing foreign receivers.

The controls allow the Commerce Department to say how much crude oil can be shipped out of the country and to whom.

The department on Thursday cut down on the amount of petroleum products it will permit to be shipped abroad.

How much crude oil will be stopped from shipment under the new license control is not clear since no export quota has yet been set.

Crude oil shipments abroad have been at the rate of 7,200,000 barrels a year, exclusive of Canada, which has been getting 2,600,000 barrels a month.

More On Yalta

Mr. Byrnes in his book, Speaking Frankly, says that if he had been at Yalta on February 11, 1945, "it is probable" he would have learned of the Roosevelt gift of the Kuriles to Soviet Russia. Judging from Secretary Marshall's confession yesterday, we doubt it. Secretary (then General) Marshall was at Yalta, but he knew nothing about the Manchurian deal. Moscow, in return for a promise to go to war with Japan, got a reversion of the Manchurian concessions once enjoyed by the Czarists. Mr. Roosevelt, according to Mr. Byrnes, promised "to have China agree to that part affecting China's territory." And he kept his word. Under the Sino-Russian agreement of August 14, 1945, China ratified the Yalta understanding, and got as a quid pro quo a Russian pledge of friendship and support for Chiang Kai-shek's regime. The Soviet has honored the treaty by trying to turn Manchuria into a Soviet colony without regard to China's rights, especially at Dairen; and its friendship and support of Chiang have been expressed in silence and inactivity during his present travail.

Though these cessions were not known to Mr. Marshall, it must be said that it was because of his estimate of the military situation that they were made. It is said on good authority that he told Mr. Roosevelt Japan could hold out for 18 months after the collapse of Germany. Few errors in the war were more egregious than this. Actually, Japan was on the verge of disintegration while the deal on Manchuria was under discussion, and gave in within four months of the Allied victory in Europe. It is, we know, the fashion to give the credit to the atomic bomb, but no competent and honest observer believes it. In Navy circles, moreover, there was the utmost skepticism as to the expediency of courting the war entry of Russia, anyway. Mr. Roosevelt paid a purchase price for it which, in these days of Russian noncooperation with China or with the United States, is heavy on the American conscience, and which is one of the reasons that the conference at Yalta was the monumental blunder that we called it when the real news of what happened began to be public property.

Greek Stiffening

The fact that the problem in Greece is primarily military is faced frankly in the President's second report on American aid to Greece and Turkey. This was our view at the beginning of the adventure. That it has been more arduous than was contemplated is due to the lack of initial attention to this reality. Fear of intervention also inhibited more house cleaning in Athens. It took months to get such changes in the premiership and the Ministry of Public Order as would relieve this country of the charge of backing reactionaries who were making Communists. And little was done till recently to put pressure upon the military leaders. Of late weeks, however, a spur has been applied by Maj. Gen. William G. Livesay, chief of the American Army group in Greece, who has insisted on sitting with the Greek Defense Council. Yet he has now been called home. No explanation is given, though the reason may lie in the despatch of General Van Fleet, who, together with the commander of the British troops in Greece, will be a member of the Defense Council, not simply an observer. The conclusion is that a stronger American hand is to be displayed in tackling the situation in Greece.

Such a conclusion is supported not only by Mr. Truman's statement that more funds will soon be asked to supplement aid to Greece but also by Mr. Loy Henderson's statement at Louisville. Mr. Henderson is head of the Near East Division of the State Department. He it was who flew out to Athens last summer and arranged for the change in portfolios and sought to straighten out the duality in American administration. What he said at Louisville may be preliminary to a request for troops. We ourselves don't see how this can be avoided in one way or other. Many months ago it seemed to us that the technique used during the war in China before the United States became a participant should be employed, namely, the raising of flying squadrons or a legion for service in Greece. When an assignment of this nature is undertaken, it is of the highest importance that it be seen through to success. Hesitation is fatal. No misunderstanding can be allowed in Tito's mind of what will happen when the Balkan interventionists run out of Greeks and begin overt activity. The sooner the Balkan Communists get it into their heads that any invasion of Greece will lead to action against them, the better for the world's peace. It is only when the aggressor feels he can get away with it that he takes a chance, as was shown by the Germans in both world wars.

General Livesay is reported to feel that if the Greek army would take its job seriously, the guerillas could be liquidated by summer. His pressure must be kept up unremittingly so that a spring offensive can be mounted. And there must also be follow-through on the political level. Everything must be done to see that the Sophoulis amnesty offer to the guerillas is carried out in letter and spirit, so as to unite pacification with vigor, and prepare the way for economic rehabilitation and free elections. Looking back on the program, without a doubt it has kept Greece independent, and the independence of Greece is vital to our national security. There, as General Eisenhower said in his last report as Chief of Staff, "We are supporting nations whose continued independence helps assure free communication and commerce between other independent nations. If this oldest corridor between East and West were walled up, the effect would be instant and catastrophic. Blocked to the western countries would be the direct air and sea routes to our friends at the strategic heart of the Eastern Hemisphere. International commerce, the economic foundation of a stable peace, would be disrupted. War, in such case, would be close to us." We welcome the stiffening of American policy that is now evident.

National Issue

Dr. George B. Galloway has effectively reminded Congress that home rule for the District of Columbia is a national as well as a local issue. It concerns the voters of Maine, Georgia, Illinois, Oregon and 44 other States. The interest of these voters is not so direct, of course, as is the interest of the voteless people of the District. Yet it is direct enough to involve the efficiency of their Congressmen in Washington and the functioning of their national law-making body.

Approximately 3000 congressional man-hours were consumed last year, Dr. Galloway told the Senate Committee which is studying the operations of the Legislative Reorganization Act, in group meetings attended by members of the House on District legislation. That is only part of the picture. Congressmen inevitably have to give much time to local affairs of the District when they are not in group meetings. All of this time must be deducted from the time which they are able to give to national affairs and the interests of their own districts and States. Worse than that, District bills have to be forced through the congested legislative machinery which is never adequate to handle all the national problems demanding attention. The inescapable fact is that Congress is neglecting numerous aspects of its national function in order to serve as a city council for the District of Columbia.

What are the District problems that claim the attention of the national law-making body? Representative O'Hara provided us with a fair sample the other day when he presided over the local controversy as to who shall collect the receipts from the sale of hot dogs and soda pop at the District Armory. There have been numerous other occasions when Congress has had to deliberate upon the sale of rockfish in the District, the removal of stone piers from a street, the granting of licenses to local chiropractors, and the naming of streets. Congress has to appropriate every cent the District spends for public welfare, schools, public health and every other municipal function—a laborious and time-consuming task.

Voters throughout the United States ought to realize that so long as the District is denied home rule they will be sending their Congressmen to Washington to take care of local trivia that everywhere else are the responsibility of local officials. We think the country ought to wake up to the fact that this is an appalling waste of talent. Many Congressmen are already deeply concerned about it. Indeed, the current home-rule movement had its origin among legislators who were trying to improve the functioning of Congress. The Auchincloss-Ball home-rule bill has been shaped under the competent guidance of Dr. Galloway who was also staff director for the La Follette-Monroney Committee, which sparked the congressiona' reorganization plan. Every member of Congress who votes for this home-rule bill will be motivated in part by the desire to give back to his district and to the Nation he represents the time now frittered away on local District affairs.

Not At His Best

Probably most people have an innate distaste for unadulterated politics issuing straight from the White House, and that distaste must have come prominently to the fore when President Truman spoke to the Democratic Party dinner in honor of Jefferson and Jackson on Thursday night. Everyone recognizes, of course, that a President desiring election for another term must do considerable campaigning. Yet somehow most of us expect the President to keep his political harangues on a higher plane than does the party campaign manager. Mr. Truman failed to do so. Whether or not that failure was related to the meager response that he drew from his audience, we do not know. But it is something for the President and his campaign managers to think about.

To be sure, a chill was cast over this traditional rally of the Democratic Party by the revolt of the South against the President's civil rights message. But many of the disgruntled Democrats manifested their resentment by staying away from the dinner. Their absence could scarcely account for the lack of enthusiasm among those who were present. We suspect that in large measure this apathy stems from a feeling that the President is stepping out of character and overplaying his hand. If our memory is correct, he has won the greatest popular response when he has given the impression that he was trying desperately hard to serve the people regardless of what the consequences might be. On Thursday night he carried little of that appeal. Falling into a strictly partisan lingo that carried neither fire nor conviction, he lost prestige that may be difficult to regain in an election year.

"Budget Juggling"

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee's proposal to earmark three billion dollars of the surplus of the current fiscal year for Marshall Plan payments in the following year is denounced by Senator Byrd as "budget juggling." It is just that, as indicated by Senator Bridges' statement that the shift afforded "double insurance" that Congress will pass a tax cut that will stick. The idea, evidently, is that with a surplus from the current year shifted to next year, Congress would be able to vote for a substantial reduction in taxes and have something left over to fulfill pledges of debt retirement. Of course, the shift would reduce by an equal amount the surplus of the current year that the Treasury had planned to use for retiring public debt.

However, the Government would not have one cent more in income in the aggregate, nor would it save any money, nor would the revenue losses resulting from any tax reduction bill that might be enacted be affected in the slightest by the budget shift. The juggling procedure simply makes it seem less rash to vote for a tax reduction measure that might put the Treasury in the red next year or at least leave it without funds for debt reduction, if compelled to depend entirely on current income to cover current outgo. A surplus held over would come in handy under such circumstances. But we fail to see how the suggested procedure could influence the attitude toward tax reduction and debt reduction of conscientious members of Congress who are willing to face facts.

Furthermore, if the huge Federal debt is to be reduced, now is the time to make inroads on it. The Treasury has also been counting heavily on the debt retirement program made possible by the large current budget surplus as a means of controlling credit inflation during the next few months. Retirement of securities held by Federal Reserve Banks, for example, cancels Treasury balances built up by tax receipts and results in declines in bank deposits and bank reserves. Senator Millikin, however, opposes debt retirement on the scale contemplated because it might bring "an explosive contraction of credit"—a remote contingency. This kind of devious legislative approach is, in our opinion, indefensible, and reflects on the integrity of legislators who resort to make-believe to gain their ends.

Talking Of Austria

Mr. Byrnes always felt that negotiation was a safeguard against the deterioration of relations with Soviet Russia arising out of the failure of the peacemaking. Secretary Marshall evidently shares this feeling. For he seized with alacrity the opportunity of a new proposal by Soviet Russia to try again to come to an agreement on Austria. Austria, of course, is not regarded as an enemy, but as a candidate for the liberation that has been pledged. Yet the country is still occupied by Allied troops, and a great portion of its assets, even including land, are under earmark by Soviet Russia as "German assets" to which Soviet Russia asserts title under a broad reading of the Potsdam agreement.

The compromise that Russia offers is unworthy of the word, and is so stiff as to be unacceptable as it stands. It calls for payment by Austria of 200 million dollars in cash in two years, concessions on Austria's oil, a portion of important Austrian assets, and freedom from Austrian jurisdiction over the concessioned properties. The Austrians, anxious to get foreign troops out of their territory, would be willing to work as hard as the Finns in meeting any tolerable obligation. But the present bill simply could not be paid out of Austrian resources. The intent, doubtless, is to get aid under the Marshall Plan—a use of ERP funds which would certainly be rejected. Moreover, extraterritoriality for Russia in Austria, such as is involved in the item excluding Austrian jurisdiction over concessioned areas, would be a qualification on Austrian independence.

The Russians will have to reduce their demands if there is to be a meeting of minds. Nobody knows their attitude. Certainly, as Secretary Marshall has said, there is nothing to show in Russo-American relations of late that Moscow wants to wind up the cold war. But if there is a disposition to negotiate, then it should be seized, and it is to be hoped that the American delegates have been given flexible instructions for this purpose. After all, our anti-appeasement policy does not exclude accommodation with Moscow based on the pacification of Europe.

WALLS UNDER SNOW

The walls surround us, walls of stone and shale,
Crowned by their towers of young pines—
Pinnacles and splinters knifing over our heads.
The cloth of white ice, in rumpled folds,
Is thrown around their granite shoulders,
Furling and freezing down their sides.
Suddenly through the rocky, piny silences,
The snowflakes start to put a mist about them,
Slowly turning a tenuous cloud
Across the choppy ground and the steel-edged air.
The cloak of unreality is buttoned on:
For the walls and boulders become misty banks
That any warm breath may seem to dissolve.

Saving The Soil

I was pleased to see "Realist's" letter of February 16 pointing out the deplorable condition of this Nation's top soil, the importance of which is apparent to so few persons.

I have seen my own acreage, through careful planning, deepen its topsoil. We now produce a better, more abundant crop; we now have no erosion. During the rapid thaw of this last weekend, I stood at my window and watched the soil literally pour from the uncovered slopes of my neighbor's acres. We scraped up some of this soil which washed onto our road. It is the finest kind of topsoil, all washed away because of thoughtless lack of care of the land. It is priceless—impossible to reconstruct overnight. It takes three to five years to produce the 2 bushels of topsoil that my wife and I scraped off our road.

China is not a thoughtless comparison. China, or Cathay, was the richest country in the world only four centuries ago. China was rich because the topsoil was rich—essentially the basis of a nation's economy. Through overpopulation and careless consideration of the soil (actually, mining the soil) the nation that was once the highest in culture and wealth is now impoverished. The soil of the United States is going the same way as went the soil of China—only faster.

Rather than seek legislation to encourage overpopulation at the expense of the state—it would be a more intelligent action to advocate compulsory conservation of the soil, levying a fine or tax upon those landowners who fail to do so.

Symphony Organization

The article of February 15 by your music critic, Paul Hume, indicates a confusion in his mind as to the basic organization of the National Symphony Orchestra Association, though that setup is printed in every regular program of the Wednesday and Sunday concerts. The association consists of members who give $25 or more, annually, in support of the orchestra. Every member has a vote in orchestra affairs.

Mr. Milton King, treasurer of the association, was accused by Mr. Hume of "double talk" because he did not definitely say what would be done with the orchestra if the quota of the sustaining fund was not reached this year. Mr. King could not take the authority either to state definitely or to prophesy the fate of the orchestra until the members of the association voted their decision in meeting.

Mr. Hume's mention of "public lack of support for the present conductor" seems to boil down to two letters sent to The Washington Post and the Evening Star, both seemingly written by persons who do not know much about the orchestra. It hardly seems necessary to "champion" Dr. Kindler against such opinions. The casual suggestion of getting another conductor makes one smile when thinking of the history of music in Washington. Until Hans Kindler came and practically picked a symphony orchestra out of the air—which no one before him had been able to do for any length of time, despite valiant efforts—Washington was indeed a poor place musically . . .

The budget printed with Mr. Hume's article shows an amount of $200,500 to cover all salaries of players, conductors and guest conductors. Divide that by a hundred (which is the number of salaries that amount must cover) you'll find that it does not come to a very princely sum, per capita, for trained and expert musicians. Not a very tempting offer to conductors of the same standards and renown as Kindler.

"Facsimile"

Your February 17 editorial on the electronic system of newsprint delivery points out one error in the interpretation of the term "facsimile," as used for this new means of communication.

May I also point out that "facsimile," as a noun, should be left to denote "an exact copy or reproduction" and that a new word could be coined to cover the specific application of facsimile in this instance?

I would think that "telesimile" could be adopted to denote "a facsimile transmitted by radio or electronic systems."

Lincoln On Equality

While we are about this business of evaluating Abraham Lincoln—as we have done recently from platform, in the press and over radio—it might be well to keep the record straight. From the manner in which we have been reminded that "This is what he said," we might easily draw the conclusion that he was not only the Great Emancipator of slavery but also the foremost crusader for social racial equality.

The merits of social equality are beside the point; what is important is that Lincoln be accurately represented, and for this purpose the following is quoted from a speech made in Charleston, Ill., on September 18, 1858:

"I will say, then, that I am not, nor ever have been, in favor of bringing about in any way the political and social equality of the white and black races; that I am not, nor ever have been, in favor of making voters or jurors of Negroes, nor of qualifying them to hold office, nor to intermarry with white people; and I will say in addition to this that there is a physical difference between the white and black races which I believe will forever forbid the two races being together on terms of social and political equality.

"And inasmuch as they cannot so live, while they do remain together, there must be the position of superior and inferior, and I, as much as any other man, am in favor of having the superior position assigned to the white man."

"Population Again"

I have read with interest your February 13 editorial, "Population Again," in which this writer is mentioned.

It seems to me that the validity of the report of the National Committee on Immigration Policy rests chiefly upon two assumptions: (1) that the United States is threatened with a decrease in population in the near future, and (2) that a stationary or decreasing population within 40 years would be a danger to the United States.

Since 1940 the population of the United States has increased from 132 million to 145 million, and during the past few years this country has produced the largest baby crops in its history.

Most students of population growth believe that the size of recent baby crops will decrease substantially. But they will have to decrease a great deal if the United States is not to increase beyond 159,420,000, the figure mentioned by the National Committee on Immigration Policy for the year 1985.

Even if the baby crops average only half as large during the coming 40 years as they are today, our population would reach 185 million by the year 1985.

Now if the Department of Agriculture estimated in 1923 that the maximum population which could be sustained here at the American standard of living would be in the neighborhood of 300 million, why should our population stop increasing at a mere 185 million?

However, at this point let me say that the estimate that this country could support 300 million people at the accustomed American standard of living, as mentioned by the National Committee on Immigration Policy, is far out of line from current estimates made by population authorities.

In The Washington Post, December 7, 1947, Mr. Robert N. Cool writes:

"Soil conservation experts estimate we are losing 500,000 acres of topsoil a year to erosion and overuse. There are about 460 million acres of good cropland left. On the 3-acre basis, 429 million acres are needed to sustain 144 million population. That leaves a reserve of 31 million. But it is estimated the 1950 population will be at least 147,500,000, so if the forecasts are borne out, the rising population line and the declining cropland line will cross shortly after 1950."

Much the same story may be told about our forests and mineral resources by the annual report of the Secretary of Interior for 1947. The United States is not even supporting its present population of 145,000,000 on a permanent sustaining basis. It has to dig deeper and deeper each year into its capital of resources that should be preserved for future generations.

Although the population of the United States is almost certain to increase beyond 159,400,000 by 1985 without immigration, is there any logical reason why it should increase beyond that figure? Can any supporting evidence be found in the reports of the Soil Conservation Service, the Forest Service, or the Bureau of Mines?

Prof. P. K. Whelpton, a population expert for both the Hoover and Roosevelt administrations, has stated that if the United States could choose between having a stationary population of 150 million or 100 million,, it can be shown quite conclusively that the smaller number would be better from an economic standpoint.

If the population experts who wrote the National Resources Committee report. The Problems of a Changing Population," are not alarmed about a stationary or decreasing population, why should the National Committee on Immigration Policy be?

"The transition from an increasing to a stationary or decreasing population may on the whole be beneficial to the life of the Nation," says the National Resources Committee report. "It insures the continuance of a favorable ratio of population to natural resources in the United States. Each citizen of this country will continue to have, on the average, a larger amount of arable land, minerals and other natural resources at his disposal than the citizen of any of the countries of the Old World. This supplies the material basis for a high level of living, if these resources are used wisely and if cultural conditions are favorable to initiative and cooperative endeavor."

Political Film Finesse

By Malvina Lindsay

Movies for Voters

HERE ARE some tips for those Republicans and Democrats who are planning to use movies in campaigning. They come from my personal analyst of the mob mind, Prof. J. Truckler Tabb, who has just completed a coast-to-coast study on the newsreel consciousness.

"My study should be especially valuable to party leaders," said Professor Tabb, as he arranged his graphs preliminary to making his report, "because rule No. 1 in any political campaign is to avoid dealing with basic issues. People want something trivial or at least personal to get mad about.

"The decision to use movies politically is a happy one. For all through the war and since its ending our newsreels and shorts have done a notable job in keeping us sheltered from unpleasant realities. Of course commercial exhibitors say they must please their patrons or go bankrupt. And the patrons say they have troubles enough of their own with the high cost of living and their fright over the depression and what the Russians will do next, and that they want opiates from their mass media. Hence if politicians want to draw crowds to their movies they will have to follow the mob mind appeal."

THE professor held up a chart. "Note the bathing beauty index—or I should say curve——"

"You mean," I interrupted, "the political movies should show bathing beauties!"

"Certainly! Now to provide material for their political news cameras, both parties should begin at once organizing beauty contests in every precinct and township, ending with national super pageants in which Miss Democrat and Miss Republican would be chosen to vie with each other in winning votes. Imagine the number of beauty queens who could be pictured! Imagine the votes that the party showing the most alluring girls could roll up!"

"But," I persisted, "wouldn't the parties have to feature their candidates in their movies?"

"Well—yes, in brief glimpses, together with big campaign contributors, perhaps voicing a few psychologically tested platitudes. But the musical background, designed to relax and soothe the spectators, shouldn't be interrupted too long. Now to go on to the fashion shows——"

"But what about foreign affairs in the political movies?"

"Of course they would be necessary, but should be handled from the hand-out—I mean relief angle. No rehabilitation problems! Hunger is fairly easy to understand and even to handle, but political movie-goers don't want to rack their brains over how to help people help themselves, or even to become future custome: for our goods."

"But would you show hunger?"

"Yes—and again no. Perhaps a few flashes of hungry people, but nothing too depressing. Rather some shots of well-fed committees boarding planes to inspect the starving. Or a party notable wiping his plate clean with a piece of bread to show he is saving food and also that he hasn't any high-toned table manners. Or lots of a political socialite's cocktail party at which are served cleverly designed canapes made without flour.

"YOU SEE the technique is not to disturb the comfortable assurance that large helpings of ice cream and cake are every American's due. Besides, political movie-goers will want ice cream sodas after the film."

"But surely, Professor, the political movies should deal with such issues as high prices, housing, taxes."

"These can be simply disposed of by showing shots of opposition leaders at their worst, preferably with their mouths open eating or talking, and by lifting quotes from them out of context so they will seem to say foolish, damaging things. But to get back to the fashion shows. These can be a wonderful means of giving party women recognition and of getting their minds off of running for office or crashing party caucuses. Then both parties can do a lot with elephants and donkeys."

"But surely the atom bomb——"

"I have no curve of interest for that on my graph," said the professor firmly. "That is a job for educational organizations. Surely you wouldn't call a political party an educational organization."

"Not exactly. But people should be awakened——"

"My job is reporting what the public will want," said the professor as he put his charts in his briefcase.

VFW Housing Support

Your reporter Sam Stavisky did a fine job of reviewing, in your issue of February 15, the scope of Uncle Sam's assistance to vets. With most of his conclusions the veterans will agree. But in his remarks on lack of an adequate housing program he shouldn't have implied that the Veterans of Foreign Wars hasn't tried to do a good job. He shouldn't have kissed us off by saying that veterans' organizations have failed to get together and present a workable program.

A more thoughtful view would have given Veterans of Foreign Wars credit for its strong advocacy of a workable program—the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing proposal. Other veterans' groups might be called bench-warmers, but the least he could do would be to give credit where due. Just because the Legion doesn't go along, don't write off Veterans of Foreign Wars, Amvets, etc.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Hopeful Beginning On The Atom

ONE OF the major contributions of the present Administration has been the organization on a peacetime basis of the vast atomic energy project. The importance of this contribution should not be lost sight of now that the political dead cats have begun to fly in an election year.

Childs

It could not have happened, of course, without cooperation from Capitol Hill. In 1946 Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut pioneered the bill to create a civilian Atomic Energy Commission. He had the steadfast support of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, who put the weight of his experience and prestige behind civilian control.

A year ago, when the names of the five commissioners were up for confirmation, a smear campaign with overtones of hysteria was unloosed. This originated with those who had tried to prevent civilian authority from taking over and it was aimed particularly at Chairman David Lilienthal.

Again Vandenberg stood firm. So did Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, who, as chairman of the Senate committee considering the appointments, insisted on getting the facts. Since then, as chairman of the joint Senate-House committee supervising the commission, Hickenlooper has been a working partner in the project that means so much for the future of the world. He recently completed a tour of inspection that took him to the Pacific Coast and back.

IN SPITE of their differing backgrounds the five commissioners have formed a remarkably harmonious team. This was shown on the question of whether the commission should make available to foreign governments radio isotopes, a by-product of bomb-making invaluable for research in medicine. The vote, following an always friendly debate, was 4 to 1 in favor of letting other nations have the isotopes.

The only scientist member of the commission is Robert F. Bacher, who played a part in developing atomic fission. Bacher has proved one of the most useful commissioners, impressing Congressmen with his practicality as well as with his scientific grasp of the new revolutionary forces.

Bacher will probably be the only commissioner to fly to the AEC-Navy proving ground on Eniwetok atoll in the far Pacific for new and highly secret tests this summer.

On August 1 the terms of the five commissioners expire. If they were all to be replaced, progress and continuity would undoubtedly suffer. The unsettling effect would be felt a long way down the line.

This poses a ticklish problem in an election year. It involves the success of a two-billion-dollar undertaking that belongs to you and me. The basic security of the Nation may depend on continuing progress in atomic development.

The law provides that, after the two-year period ended August 1, the commissioners shall be named for separate terms—one for one year and one for two years, one for three years, one for four years, and one for five years. If President Truman should decide to reappoint all the commissioners willing to accept reappointment, he might do it in two ways.

HE COULD send the names to the Senate two or three months before the August 1 deadline. Then they could be considered before Congress quits for the election campaign. Or they could be sent up after Congress leaves, as recess appointments. The commissioners could serve in the interval, and then, if a Republican President came in, he could decide what he wanted to do.

One significant change has occurred. Lieut. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, a member of the military liaison committee, is retiring to become director of research for a large corporation. It is no secret that Groves did not get on with the commission. Perhaps it was too much to expect that any man who had exercised farflung authority as the wartime boss of the atomic project could adjust to the new approach.

There have been other frictions. They were inevitable with so much pioneering to be done.

It is hard for most of us to remember and to realize what atomic energy means. The other day the mayors of 250 cities meeting in New York got a brand-new shock when Maj. Gen. Harold R. Bull, Deputy Chief of the Army General Staff, spelled out exactly what would happen if a single atomic bomb fell on the center of a city.

Mankind stands on a knife edge between a new heaven and a new hell. In that uncomfortable position, gloomy forebodings come crowding in. Therefore, it is good to know that a hopeful beginning has been made toward encompassing atomic energy within our political system. It is reason to hope that some day, in spite of current fears and hostilities, all nations may join to control this force for the good of all men.

Millikin's Shift

By Ernest Lindley

Practical Side Of Book Juggling

THE PRIZE in this Congress for coming nearest to a solution of the problem of eating your cake and having it too belongs to Senator Millikin, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Senator Millikin's plan is simple: Three billion dollars from the Treasury surplus during the current fiscal year, ending June 30, should be set aside in a special fund to be spent on the European Recovery Program during the next fiscal year.

Lindley

There is no doubt that the Treasury will have a substantial surplus during the current fiscal year, even if an income tax cut is made retroactive to January 1. Whether it will have a surplus in fiscal '49 is not so certain if the tax cut is made. The tax cut would apply to all of next year, in contrast to only half of the current fiscal year. If it is made retroactive to January 1, large tax refunds for the current fiscal year will have to be made out of next year's income.

Also, there is no assurance that expenditures next year will be smaller than this year. The budget proposed by the President for fiscal '49 is higher than for the current year. The overall cuts pledged by the Senate Republicans would bring expenditures next year only a little below this year. And it is reasonable to expect, on the basis of past experience, that these cuts won't be made in full or won't stick.

THEN THERE is the question of whether the national income next year will be as high as the congressional experts calculated recently or even so high as the slightly more conservative Treasury experts estimated. This question has been pushed to the front by the break in commodity prices. As the national income falls, tax revenue falls also.

Taking into account all these factors, there is, or was, a real possibility that the Treasury might arrive at the end of the next fiscal year, June 30, 1949, with a deficit. This would not be a good advertisement for the party that boasts of being conservative about finance and which for years attacked the Roosevelt deficits.

The Millikin shift is a simple way of guarding against such a result by transferring three billion dollars of next year's expenditures to the current year. The money actually won't be spent this year. But the Treasury books will say it is spent this year, for it will be taken out of the general funds of the Treasury and put in a special trust fund.

THIS IS the most transparent sort of book-juggling, but the promptness with which it was indorsed by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee indicates that it also has obvious practical advantages.

It weakens the opposition to a substantial cut in taxes. At the same time, it weakens the opposition to adequate financing of the European Recovery Program and of the armed services. It enables members of both parties to vote for tax cuts, for sufficient funds for ERP, and for strengthening our air power, etc., and at the same time to stand unflinchingly for a balanced budget and a margin of surplus with which to reduce the national debt.

Senator Millikin has one more argument in favor of his scheme. The substantial Treasury surplus which will be accumulated during the remainder of this fiscal year, especially as a result of final payments on last year's income, will have a deflationary effect on the economy. The deflationary effect will be aggravated if the surplus is used to retire Federal securities. The result might be too much deflation in too short a time. His scheme would spread debt retirement more evenly over a period of 15 months.

Senator Millikin, moreover, can cite at least partial precedents for his shift. For example, in setting up Government corporations in the past, the money allocated to the corporation has sometimes been counted as an expenditure when it was transferred from the Treasury instead of when it was spent by the corporation.

But a scheme with so many practical political attractions needs little justification in precedent or logic. The Millikin shift offers so many political advantages in so many directions that it seems likely to receive no more than a genial kidding from the Democratic side and, in the end, to be embraced gratefully by all except a few stalwart purists.

N. Y. Red Says Party Declines Use of Force

By The Associated Press

Benjamin J. Davis, Communist member of the New York City Council, denied yesterday that his party advocates use of force and violence to bring about political change.

Further, Davis told a House Un-American Activities Subcommittee that Communists will not register as foreign agents.

The committee, headed by Representative Nixon (R., Calif.) is considering two bills. One would outlaw the Communist Party and the other would require United States Communists to register as agents of a foreign power.

Asserts Reds' Patriotism

Davis told the committee:

"We are patriotic Americans and refuse to be put in a category of political suspects or second-class citizens.

"We will not make a mockery of the secret ballot by publishing the names of our members. We will not wear the yellow badge of shame the American disciples of Hitler seek to place upon us, nor will our press submit to censorship and discriminatory restrictions."

Davis said the Communist Party "has been the best friend and staunchest champion the Negro people ever had.

"In defending the Communist Party, I defend my people against the lynch mob which this committee shields. I defend my people against the Truman Administration, whose belated vote-catching concern for the rights of the Negro people is a hypocritical sham," he said.

No Comment on Statement

Davis identified himself as a member of the national executive board of the Communist Party and said he represented the party. He described it as a "legal political party."

Davis' appearance as a witness was in sharp contrast with rows that have occurred when Communists have been called before the Committee on Un-American Activities.

Davis read his prepared statement with additional comments. The committee members asked him no questions. When he finished, Chairman Nixon told him calmly: "You may step down, Mr. Davis."

Red Excluded From U. S. Reenters, Gives Self Up

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—CIO Union Leader Charles Anthony Doyle, barred from returning to this country on grounds he is an alien Communist, reentered the United States and surrendered to immigration authorities today.

A Scot who has lived in this country most of the time since 1923, Doyle was barred from returning to his home after attending a union meeting in Canada early this year.

He was long-time regional director of the CIO Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers Union at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

The Justice Department said he "has been a member of the Communist Party since 1928 and has been active in its affairs."

A special board of inquiry in Buffalo ordered his exclusion on grounds he was an alien who belonged to a group advocating violent overthrow of the Government.

The Justice Department has assumed he was living in Canada until he put himself in the hands of Immigration Service agents today. It was not disclosed how he reentered the country.

Doyle asserted in a statement that "I belong here and I will fight to stay here and to become an American citizen."

Subcommittee Votes 10-Year Life for RFC

Continuation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for another 10 years, but with severe capital and operating restrictions, was voted yesterday by a Senate Banking Committee.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator Buck (R., Del.), voted 5-0 to give the RFC, established during the Hoover Administration, 10 more years, with an additional two years for liquidation. The agency is scheduled to expire next June 30.

The bill approved by the subcommittee would make these changes:

1. Cut RFC's capital and surplus from 875 million dollars to 150 million, the difference of 725 million going to the Treasury. This would raise the Treasury surplus available for debt reduction and tax cuts.

2. Require the RFC to charge interest rates on its loans to private business that would keep it on a "self-supporting" basis. Since its establishment in 1932, it has cleared a profit of 570 million dollars, but no law required it to do so.

3. Set a ceiling of one billion dollars on loans and other commitments that RFC could have outstanding at any one time. This applies only to loans made after June 30, 1947, and cut in half the present loan ceiling of two billion dollars. About $1,300,000,000 in loans is outstanding at present, of which only 200 million would be "new loans" under the proposed bill.

4. Restore the agency's power to buy preferred stock in banks and insurance companies when the Secretary of the Treasury certifies those institutions need capital funds. Current law forbids such purchases.

5. Reduce the percentage of bank loans that the RFC can guarantee, which at present is 90 per cent. The new bill would permit guarantees of as much as 65 per cent on "small loans" of less than $100,000 and up to 50 per cent on larger loans.

The subcommittee also recommended increasing the RFC chairman's salary to $17,500 and that of the directors to $15,000. It added a clause providing for presidential appointment of the chairman instead of his election by the other board members.

Grand Jury Action Waived in Thefts

A 48-year-old itinerant former convict waived grand jury action on a charge of larceny of mail yesterday following a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Samuel Meloy at Upper Marlboro, Md.

Held at the Marlboro Jail in $5000 bond was Francis Edward Roberts of Columbus, Ohio, who police said took four envelopes containing checks from mailboxes in the Queens Manor Apartment development while deliverying advertising circulars Thursday. He was arrested by Prince Georges County Detective Richard Pearson and Identification Officer Edwin Cissel after police were tipped off by his employer, who said he found two of the checks hidden in a truck used to carry the circulars.

Murray Pleads Not Guilty In Labor Law Violation Case

CIO President Philip Murray yesterday pleaded not guilty to charges of unlawful political activity, and began court procedure to throw out a section of the new labor law as unconstitutional.

He appeared before Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff, in District Court, and appealed to dismiss an indictment returned by a grand jury.

The charge was that the CIO and he had violated a section of the Taft-Hartley Act which forbids a labor organization from spending any money in connection with a Federal election.

Murray, in a deliberate test of the section, had endorsed a Congressional candidate last summer and distributed copies of his union paper carrying that endorsement.

Hearing March 6

Holtzoff agreed to hear argument on Murray's dismissal petition on March 5. However, he rules, there will be appeals, which will ultimately bring the case to the Supreme Court. For both the CIO and the Justice Department, prosecuting the case, are eager for a clarification.

Murray's formal arraignment required only a few minutes. He waived reading of the indictment. Then a clerk asked "how do you wish to plead?"

"Not guilty," he replied.

The judge asked if the plea was for both himself and the CIO. Murray said it was.

Holtzhoff ordered Murray to post a new bond for $1000. The old bond, posted in Pittsburgh, merely was for his appearance here, the judge said.

Then Murray was taken to the marshal's office to be fingerprinted, a routine procedure.

Murray's attorneys were Lee Pressman, until recently the CIO's general counsel, and Charles J. Margiotti, former Attorney General of Pennsylvania.

In their motion to dismiss the indictment, they declared that the Taft-Hartley Act provision abridged the freedom of speech and press as well as the right of peaceable assembly guaranteed by the Constitution. Also, they said, it violated the right of the CIO to petition the Government for redress of grievances.

The law arbitrarily discriminated against labor organizations, they argued. They added that "a prohibition upon the expenditure of funds requisite to the exercise of civil rights is in effect a prohibition upon the exercise of civil rights."

Department Store Sales Drop Despite Break in Commodities

By John W. Ball

Post Reporter

In spite of the wave of lower prices that has swept into retail stores since the recent market break began February 4, retail sales have slowed down, it was reported yesterday.

The Federa Reserve Board reported that department store sales in the weekend February 14 were three per cent below the corresponding week a year ago.

Yesterday most commodity prices dipped again. Wheat lost from two to four cents. Other grains closed at about the same figure they closed at a week ago Friday—indicating that market fluctuations for this week will have a little effect upon prices of foodstuffs.

A measure to limit consumption of grain by liquor distillers to not less than 2,500,000 bushels a month until October 30, was passed unanimously by the Senate Banking Committee yesterday.

Prompt action on the bill is expected in the Senate. However, a similar bill recently passed by the Senate rationing whisky-makers until February 29, was pigeonholed by the House Banking Committee.

Yesterday Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the House group said his committee had no plans for early action on the new measure.

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), who voted for the measure yesterday, said he had reserved the right to oppose or amend it when it reached the floor of the Senate.

Negotiations for voluntary conservation programs by other industrial users of grains such as brewers, millers and wet millers (syrup makers, etc.) are dependent upon the outcome of the restrictions on distillers, it was stated yesterday at the Agriculture Department.

Ginsberg Pleads Innocent

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Isidore Ginsberg, a building materials dealer characterized as a "gray marketeer" at a Senate hearing, pleaded innocent today to a charge of grand larceny involving a $1575 payment.

Queens County Court Judge Thomas Downs released him on $1000 bail for further hearing February 27.

The indictment handed up by the grand jury alleged that as president of the Transcontinental Lumber Co., Ginsberg had failed to deliver 40,000 feet of rock lath for which the Crystal Lumber Co. of Winston-Salem, N. C., had paid $1575.

Judge Downs refused Ginsberg's request to be paroled in his own recognizance and set bail at $1000.

In a Senate-House probe of the housing shortage last month Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) told Ginsberg "I'm firmly convinced you are the most vicious of the gray marketeers." Ginsberg vehemently denied the charges.

The Gallup Poll

Kinsey Survey of Sex Habits Is Widely Approved by Public

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 20.—Dr. A. C. Kinsey's much-talked-about report on human sex behavior has won wide ... approval from the American people, by a ratio of 5 to 1. Those with opinions vote that it is a good thing, rather than a bad thing, to have this information on sex available.

Dr. Kinsey, a professor of Indiana University, and his associates have spent nearly 10 years gathering data on the sex habits of the population. The first of a series of reports was issued recently in the form of a book, "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male."

To test the reaction of the country toward this sort of study the institute polled a cross-section from coast to coast on two questions. The first was designed to find out how many had heard or read about Dr. Kinsey's book. Results showed that 20 per cent, or one person in every five, has heard about the book, which was published less than two months ago.

All persons in the poll, whether they had heard about the Kinsey report of not, were then asked this question:

Dr. A. C. Kinsey has completed a nine-year study on the sex behavior of males in this country. Do you think it is a good thing or a bad thing to have this information on sex available?

The vote:
Good thing			57%
Bad thing			11
Qualified	4	5	3
No opinon	29	27	28

The principal qualifications expressed by the 4 per cent were "good, but not for children to read," and "good if properly presented."

The survey found that both Protestants and Catholics in the population express approval of the Kinsey study, although Protestants are more in favor than Catholics are.

	Protestants	Catholics	Others And Non-Church
Good thing	57%	49%	61%
Bad thing	10	19	8
Qualified	4	5	28
No opinion	29	27	3

The survey also has much more support from young people—those under 30 years of age—than from the older age groups.

	21-29	30-49	50 & over
Good thing	70%	58%	46%
Bad thing	6	11	14
Qualified	2	5	4
No opinion	22	26	36

In his report on the sex behavior of American males Dr. Kinsey repeatedly shows that there are wide differences of behavior and of attitude toward sex according to degree of education.

In today's Institute survey there are also differences of attitude toward the whole Kinsey project according to degree of education, with the college and high school graduates most in favor, and those who have had only grade-school training or no schooling least in favor.

	College	High School Only	Grade or No School
Good	68%	62%	50%
Bad	8	10	13
Qual.	7	5	3
No opin.	17	23	34

"People should be informed about sex; the subject has been hidden too long"—that is the typical reason given by the majority for approving the Kinsey report. Other comments in the same vein include, "Lack of information leads to unhappiness and poor adjustment . . . Education on this subject is badly needed . . . The younger generation needs to know."

Those who disapprove of the Kinsey survey give as their main reasons that "we hear too much about sex these days," that "this information should be given out only by parents," and that "the information could be used in the wrong hands to corrupt people's morals."

Public support for the Kinsey project is in line with earlier public opinion poll findings on the subject of sex education in the high schools. On several occasions the Institute has polled the country on whether courses in sex education should or should not be made a part of the regular school curriculum. Large majorities have expressed approval of the step.

British Exports Reach New Postwar High in January

By Jack Tait

London, Feb. 29 (NYHT.).—British exports in January totaled 119,500,000 pounds 478 million dollars), the highest since the war, the Board of Trade announced today.

The figure differed little from that for last July or last December when allowance is made for the Christmas parcel post recorded after the first of the year.

January imports totaled 161,800,000 pounds ($647,200,000), higher than in any months except last July and August. The increase in imports in January over December of 8,400,000 pounds ($33,600,000), it was said, was due to the higher value of foods.

The excess of imports over exports in December was cut from 39,200,000 pounds ($156,800,000) to 36,800,000 pounds ($147,200,000).

Other figures which explain Britain's extreme dollar shortage were given. Imports from hard-currency areas in 1947 totaled 830,300,000 pounds ($3,321,200,000), or 46.5 per cent of the total. Exports to hard-currency areas came to 254,600,000 pounds ($918,400,000), an increase of 79,400,000 pounds ($317,600,000) over 1946. This means that only 21.3 per cent of Britain's exports in 1947 went to hard-currency areas, which supplied the country with 46.5 per cent of its imports.

The excess of imports over exports with hard-currency areas rose from 452,300,000 pounds ($1,709,200,000) in 1946 to 575,600,000 pounds ($2,302,400,000) in 1947.

It Costs $227 To Put Phone In Your Hands

By S. Oliver Goodman

Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. now has an investment of $227 for every telephone in service here, President H. Randolph Maddox stated yesterday in the annual pamphlet report.

Maddox

Investment in plant at the end of 1947 totaled $93,216,247, a net increase of $9,118,148 or 10.8 per cent for the year. Gross plant additions last year, he said, amounted to $15,529,416.

Maddox, reviewing the year's operations, said "substantial progress" was made toward meeting many of the company's postwar objectives but financial results were "disappointing." The ratio of income to invested capital, he pointed out, "declined to the lowest point in 27 years, namely, 3.83 per cent as compared to 6.2 per cent in the preceding year."

C. & P. operating revenues in 1947 totaled $29,534,636, as compared with $29,446,427 in 1946. Operating expenses before taxes climbed $2,133,223, or 9.6 per cent, to a record high of $24,442,837. Taxes amounted to $2,702,620.

Net income amounted to $2,152,212, or $4.30 a share. Dividends of $4.50 a share were paid during the year to the parent company, the remaining 20 cents a share being paid from income of prior years. In 1946, net income totaled $3,381,723, or $6.76 a share.

The Public Utilities Commission late last year approved a rate increase which is expected to yield $2,018,000 additional annual gross revenues.

Total number of telephones in service here was 410,072 on December 31, 1947, a net gain of 23,955 for the year.

One on the Aisle—

Novelty in Old Guise

'Smugglers' Has A New Approach

By Richard L. Coe

"THE SMUGGLERS," at the Metropolitan, won't set the river on fire, but because it's a chase story with a different approach, I enjoyed it a lot. And parts of it are very juicy indeed.

The story stems from "The Man Within," one of those novels by England's Graham Greene, author of "Brighton Rock," "The Ministry of Fear" and "The Labyrinthine Ways," soon to be seen on the screen as "The Fugitive."

Greene is telling about a 17-year-old boy whom we see leaving his nineteenth century school under the wing of his guardian. His recently deceased father, it turns out, was a rum-runner and smuggler, evidently a big brawny guy whose puny son is derided by the crew. Only the captain-guardian, played by Michael Redgrave, befriends him.

Their happy relationship is shattered by jealous crew members, who trick the young lad, acted by Richard Attenborough, into looking like a thief. Redgrave orders him whipped, guessing the truth but flogging the boy to save him from the crew.

The reaction of this flogging on the boy is the key to the picture. He was weak anyway, but this turns him into a cowardly informer. He tips off the police ashore as to the next smuggling foray. An officer is killed, many of the smugglers are taken. But Redgrave escapes and so does Attenborough. Then the chase begins.

Ultimately, and after some hairbreath escapes, both men get the chance to turn on the other. But they remember their friendship—"The Man Within." Courage comes to the weaker, forgiveness to the stronger.

Flashback and Team Color

This is, you'll allow, a different sort of approach to the usual chase formula. Because it's told in flashback, it may be a trifle troublesome to follow, but it doesn't need much effort. And to help you along there are some neat touches.

Most eye-filling of these are two ladies who help the boy. Joan Greenwood, whose west county accent is intriguing, gives him shelter in her cottage, though the dead policeman was her stepfather. Jean Kent plays a lass who's not likely to be found in church on a Sunday. She likes the boy because he's young and pretty, and it's amusing to find so frankly predatory a female lurching across the Metropolitan screen.

The chose incidents are often tingling, thanks to a happy use of background music and Redgrave's passion for a musical pipe, whose notes give the clew to the boy that his enemy is near. There are some torture scenes that will put your eyes on stalks and the Technicolor reveals that Michael Redgrave's eyes are blue.

The players include some characters you may recall from "Great Expectations," and though this isn't Dickens, however parts of it may seem so, it's at least different. And with this reporter, a little novelty is a big thing.

"THE SMUGGLERS," J. Arthur Rank production of Eagle-Lion Release, produced by Muriel and Sydney Box, directed by Bernard Knowles, screen play by Muriel and Sydney Box from the novel, "The Man Within," by Graham Greene. At the Metropolitan.

BROTHERHOOD WEEK finds brotherhood-conscious Variety Club at full tilt next week, when the showmen will be giving one of their rare luncheons at the Statler Wednesday at 12:30 . . . Columnist Drew Pearson, whose blood pressure seems able to stand one of the busiest schedules in town, will be guest of honor and say a few words about his stirring Friendship Train . . . Main speaker will be Louis Novins, Paramount executive and assistant to bigwig Barney Balaban . . . Though the Congressional Room's big, the town's showmen and their friends will be putting on a show that ought to be just whopping.

WEEKEND FLASHES: "I Know where I'm Going" begins its ninth week at the Hippodrome . . . "Cinderella," the children's ballet, plays both a matinee and night performance today at Roosevelt High; the matinee is sold out and the evening's going fast . . . Sports fans can get a switch from basketball at the Trans-Lux, where they've got some clips on an Australian game called "Code" football, a mixture of football, soccer, basketball and rugby . . . Tomorrow afternoon and night Maurice Schwartz plays his "Shylock and His Daughter" at the National.

G. WASHINGTON'S Birthday dividend—Monday—finds holiday matinees at the Warner neighborhoods and the K-B Theaters, the Apex, Naylor, Senator, Atlas and Princess.

Wintergreen Oil Fatal to Child

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—John Boone Schley, 2½-year-old son of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. John B. Schley, died yesterday in a Hagerstown, Md., hospital after accidentally swallowing a small quantity of oil of wintergreen.

The child drank about a teaspoonful of the oil. Rushed to the hospital, he never emerged from a coma. Physicians said the oil, prepared as a rubbing compound by Mrs. William B. Snyder, the boy's grandmother, damages the nervous system and brain tissues.

Griffin Gets Execution Stay Until April 30

A stay of execution until April 30 yesterday was granted Baxter Griffin, 42, of 1807 8th st. nw., who was under March 5 death sentence.

The delay was granted by Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff in District Court pending appeal to the United States Supreme Court. Griffin had been convicted of slaying Lee Hunter, 1718 9th st. nw., in a fight over a card game last March.

Atkinson Hearing Set

Richard R. Atkinson's nomination to continue as a member of the District Redevelopment Land Agency for a new five-year term will be reviewed by the Senate District Committee in a hearing at 10:30 a. m. next Thursday. The agency was set up to launch a slum clearance program here, but so far has received no funds.

Burial Bill Introduced

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) yesterday introduced a bill directing the Armed Services Department to provide headstones for the honorary burial places of persons reported missing and to permit the burial of their widows in designated cemetery lots.

Clay Notes Arms Report In Red Zone

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, Feb. 20 (NYHT).—General Lucius D. Clay, American occupation commander in Germany, brought up at the Allied Control Council meeting today reports of building of military ships and mining of uranium in the Soviet occupation zone.

The reports, Clay said, may be nothing more than rumors, but they contribute to disunity. He said again the only way to dispel mutual suspicion would be for the Russians to accept the principle of four-power inspection teams, with free access to all parts of the four zones.

Clay said he would refuse to take up again the question of demilitarization if this principle were not adopted.

Clay protested strongly against Soviet confiscation of German-language copies of James F. Byrnes' book, "Speaking Frankly."

Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander, promised to investigate, but complained of the confiscation in the American sector of Berlin of posters bearing a speech by Viacheslav M. Molotov. Clay said he would investigate.

(The first major German challenge to the AMG was reported yesterday when Bavaria disputed Clay's right to interfere in the election of memberes of the new Bizonia Economic Council.

(The Bavarian state parliament elected Dr. Johannes Semmler to the council. Clay said Semmler couldn't serve because he had been ousted previously from a bizonal post for criticizing Allied policies and practices.

(In protest, the Bavarian parliament refused to elect anybody else. If Clay persists the whole American educational program to "democratize" Germany may be seriously compromised.)

Brotherhood Week Is Keynoted in Talk by Bakke

Norris C. Bakke, associate general counsel of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., sounded a plea for tolerance and understanding yesterday in conjunction with National Brotherhood Week, which opens Sunday.

He spoke before about 200 Shriners and guests at a luncheon in the Almas Temple Sphinx Club.

"A lot of us carry around too much hatred and jealousy and ill-will toward our fellow men," Bakke declared. "Try and get acquainted with your neighbor. Once you understand him, understanding will become appreciation."

Confidence Vote Sought By Schuman

Paris, Feb. 20 (NYHT).—French Premier Robert Schuman, confronted with an insurgent movement against his anti-inflationary program, demanded a vote of confidence today.

His action in the National Assembly was designed to whip back into line government supporters who want a refunding of all the 5000-franc bank notes recently withdrawn from circulation.

The vote will be taken Tuesday. The need for it became evident when the finance committee voted, 22-19, with one abstention, to repay all the billions in 5000-franc notes by April 15. The committee overrode Finance Minister Rene Mayer's contention that at least 122 billion francs of the suppressed bills were due the government from tax-dodgers.

Opinion was that the government would get its vote of confidence.

Are Alabama Folks Rougher Than French?

Lake Success, N. Y., Feb. 20 (U.P.).—As a United Nations committee took up the subject of human rights in non-selfgoverning territories, Soviet Representative Alexander Borisov took the floor.

In Alabama, he said, there is a law entitling a husband to beat his with with a stick provided it does not exceed two inches in diameter.

"If this happens in the United States, what happens in the territories?"

New Formula to Regulate Pepco Income Drafted by PUC

A new formula which seeks to regulate electric company income to avoid periodic rate fluctuations and divide excess profits with customers was announced yesterday.

The formula provides for reserve funds to compensate the Potomac Electric Power Co. for low earnings in poor years, and make refunds to consumers in extra good years.

The result of months of study and several public hearings before the District Public Utilities Commission, it replaces the "sliding-scale plan" which has governed operations of the electric company since 1925. It was made retroactive to January 1.

Under the old formula, if company income exceeded a basic rate of return for a given year, rates the following year were reduced by one half the amount of excess earnings during the previous year. The excess earnings, however, were retained by the company.

How New Plan Works

The new plan, authored by V. A. McElfresh, executive accountant and auditor for the Public Utilities Commission, operates this way:

When income exceeds a set base—5½ per cent on capital investment—half of the profits over that amount is kept by the company as an operating incentive and the rest is distributed to consumers in the form of reductions on December bills, providing that money in the reserve, or "buffer" account, is over a specified level.

This level is to be 3 per cent of the company's annual earnings, computed on September income. If the "buffer" account is below 3 per cent of such earnings, 10 per cent of September's income is deducted from the consumers' half of the excess funds and placed in the "buffer" account to build it up.

Any balance then left for possible refund is distributed to customers, on December bills, in multiples of 5 per cent of their September bill. Any differences between multiples of 5 per cent—1 to 4 per cent, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11 per cent, etc.—goes into the buffer account.

If PEPCO income falls below the 5½ per cent base return, the company then dips into the same buffer account to make up for the lower earnings.

Proviso for 'Lean Years'

Also, the plan provides that in event of a lean year, during which the reserve or buffer account is exhausted, the company cannot go on to recoup this deficiency in a future profitable year out of the consumers' half of excess profits, but it can seek a rate increase. A rate reduction can be made if the reserve exceeds five per cent of gross income.

The reserve will be started off with approximately $713,511, consisting of funds previously set aside for possible refunds to customers, dating back to 1945.

In 1947, for the first time since the original sliding-scale plan was placed in effect, PEPCO sought a rate increase, contending that increased expenses were preventing it from maintaining the established rate of return of 5½ per cent. Previously, all rate changes had been downward.

Under the new plan, the proposed rebates to customers will not apply to such contract consumers as Capital Transit Co., and the street-lighting program of the District.

While the current order does not specifically set dates for public hearings, PUC recommended holding annual hearings under it, with the first hearing proposed for next March, when the plan will have been in effect for a calender year.

Szymczak Confirmed By Senate Voice Vote

The appointment of M. S. Szymczak of Illinois to a 14-year term on the Federal Reserve System Board of Governors was confirmed by the Senate yesterday. Action was by voice vote.

Hoyas Meet GW Tonight At Armory

Local college laurels are at stake tonight when George Washington meets Georgetown in a return game at the Armory.

Georgetown, with its earlier 51-43 victory over GW and a win over Maryland, can clinch the city championship by repeating and atone somewhat for its disappointing season.

However, if the Colonials win and then beat Maryland again in their last game of the season, they'll have a 3-1 record here. GW goes into the game with a far more impressive won and lost record, 18-5.

Georgetown has won only 9 of 24 games and has dropped its last five. Elmer Ripley has hopes his boys will snap their losing streak but refused to get optimistic at yesterday's final tune-up for the game.

The Colonials will be handicapped by the loss of Howie Hoffman, victim of a badly sprained ankle in the W. and L. game, but Coach Otts Zahn expects Bill Cantwell, scoring leader of the District, to be in shape. Cantwell, benched against Maryland in an experimental move, will be used "quite a bit," according to Zahn.

Other local teams are on the road tonight. American U. meets Siena at Albany without Pete Negley, who is ill, and Maryland faces South Carolina at Columbia. Tonight's game will be one of the last four Southern Conference tests for the Terrapins. With a 7-5 conference record, they figure a split will assure them of a tournament spot at Durham, March 4, 5, and 6.

BCC Wins Again, 52-28

Bethesda Chevy-Chase High made it 15 victories in 18 outings by defeating Hyattsville, 52-28, last night at Hyattsville. For Bethesda, Fred Geneau, Sam Towne and Mike Bollo led the scoring.

'Bones' Out As Caps Open Payoff Drive

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Caps got a break yesterday when X-rays revealed that Bones McKinney didn't.

The skinny North Carolinian received a badly sprained left ankle in Philadelphia Thursday and will have to sit out for at least a week, Dr. Harry Lewis, team physician, reported. At first, it was feared Bones had suffered a broken ankle and was lost for the rest of the season.

McKinney's temporary loss could not have come at a more inopportune for the Washingtonians. Deprived of their undisputed Western Division leadership by consecutive losses to New York and Philadelphia, the Caps launch the do-or-die phase of their campaign tonight against Baltimore at Uline Arena.

Grind Ahead

The Bullets are the first of five Western Division opponents Washington tackles within the next nine days. Although they're the Western Division's cellar-dwellers, only 1½ games separate the Bullets from Washington and St. Louis, tied for top. Between them comes the Chicago Stags, one little game out of the lead.

The Caps meet all three next week, Chicago twice. Three of the games are on the road, Baltimore (Thursday), St. Louis (Saturday) and Chicago (Sunday). The Stags will also be met here Wednesday.

With the race as tight as a drum and only 12 games remaining, this is the decisive week in the West. New York has virtually clinched the Eastern Division title and a playoff opponent for the Knicks will probably emerge from the West when the head-bumping is completed a week from tomorrow.

Two Men Subbed

Sonny Hertzberg and Irv Torgoff will be alternated in McKinney's forward position tonight. Otherwise, the Cap regulars—Bob Feerick, Johnny Mahnken, Johnny Norlander and Fred Scolari will be at their usual posts.

The Bullets, who have dropped four of their five engagements with Washington, will shoot their full strength tonight. Paul Hoffman, their freshman ace from Purdue who almost wrecked the Caps here two weeks ago, will be in the starting lineup. He was used in a reserve role in the previous meeting. Assisting him will be Chick Reiser, Cleggie Hermsen, Coach Buddy Jeanette and Grady Lewis.

Referee Dispute Causes Virgina Highs to Cancel

George Washington High of Alexandria and Washington - Lee High of Arlington yesterday canceled their Northern Virginia Class "A" conference basketball game scheduled for last night because of a dispute over the choice of officials.

Washington-Lee, the home team, had selected officials from the Northern Virginia Referee's Association but GW High Coach Al Doran insisted on District of Columbia officials.

Doran later proposed that Washington-Lee choose any two officials from a group other than the Northern Virginia group. W-L first accepted this offer, picked two men from the District and then decided to abide by its original choice of Northern Virginia men.

It was then that the game, an important one which would have a bearing on the conference championship, was canceled.

Lions Whipped Again, 8 to 5, By Providence

Holding an early three-goal margin, the Providence Reds defeated the Washington Lions, 8-5, in a rugged American League Hockey game last night at Uline Arena.

A crowd of 1210 fans saw the Reds, led by Harvey Fraser, Johnny Chad and Carl Liscombe, win their sixth straight contest from the Lions.

The classy Reds, playing a rough but effective brand of hockey, stepped out to a fast lead on first-period scores by Roger Bedard, Chuck Scherza, Carl Liscombe and Art Miehaluk. Washington's only tally came on Bud Foley's long blast that skipped past Reds' Goalie Harvey Bennett.

The Lions improved in the second session, but remained three goals behind as two goals by Frank Porteous were matched by the Reds' Harvey Fraser and Johnny Chad.

Roosevelt Shunted To Second Place as Vikings Win, 49-33

Tech, Eastern Win, Run-Off Necessary To Decide Berths

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Central's Vikings won the battle for first place in the Interhigh basketball race as they downed Roosevelt's Rough Riders, 49-33, last night in the first game of a doubleheader at the National Guard Armory.

One of the largest crowds ever to see public high basketball locally more than 3000 screaming fans saw what was a tight affair for three periods.

However, the Vikings made a runaway of the contest in the final quarter to romp to their sixth straight win after an opening day loss.

Roosevelt's loss snapped a five-game rider winning streak.

Riders Out Front

Roosevelt hopped aboard a 10-8 lead in the first quarter and stayed ahead until the last 30 seconds of the second quarter. Then Ross Keith tossed in a lay-up and Hal Sponsler added another as the halftime gun went off. Central walked off the court at intermission on top, 17-15.

The Vikings spurted into a 30-21 lead just before the third quarter ended, but the Riders whittled the deficit to 32-30 three minutes into the fourth quarter.

Kitts' Successor Signs For 3 Years

VPI Names McNeish Coach; Sikes Appointed by Kansas

Topeka, Kans., Feb. 20 (AP). — Jules Verne Sikes, 43, end coach at the University of Georgia, today was named football coach at the University of Kansas.

Sikes

The appointment of Sikes was announced by E. C. Quigley, athletic director of Kansas.

Sikes succeeds George Sauer, who resigned the head coaching position at Kansas January 31 to accept a similar position at the United States Naval Academy.

Quigley did not disclose the length of Sikes' contract nor the salary terms. Sikes will name two assistants.

Sikes was selected from a field of 65 applicants. He is a devotee of the T formation. He played under Dana Bible at Texas A. and M. in 1925-1927.

Blacksburg, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—Robert C. (Bob) McNeish, Southern California grid star in the early 1930s and backfield coach at Navy last year, today was named head football coach at Virginia Tech.

McNeish

Athletic Director L. (Monk) Younger, in making the announcement, said McNeish will receive a three-year contract. The salary was not disclosed.

McNeish succeeds J. R. (Jimmy) Kitts, head coach since 1939, who resigned in January with a year remaining on his contract.

"He will have full authority in every way to recommend assistants," Younger said.

Malone Earns Tie for Terp Boxing Team

Heavyweight Kenny Malone came through for the Maryland boxing team again last night, and because he did the Terps were able to gain a 4-4 draw with The Citadel.

With the Bulldogs leading, 4-3, and 5200 Ritchie Coliseum spectators on the verge of witnessing Maryland's first home defeat of the year, Malone was awarded a split decision over Bill Ohlandt.

This was the second time this year that Malone had saved the day for Maryland. He won his match against L. S. U. to earn the Terps a 4½ to 3½ triumph over the Bengals last month.

Last year "Fireman" Malone won the clutch match three times during the regular season to enable Maryland to win. He also won his Southern Conference tournament clash to bring Maryland the team victory.

As usual, Maryland's great little 130-pounder, Andy Quattrocchi, pounded out a TKO. His eleventh K. O. victim in 14 college bouts was Cliff Harris who wasn't around 47 second after the second round started.

Quattrocchi dropped him with a vicious left hook and Referee LaFond wisely stepped in and halted proceedings before the classy Quattrocchi could inflict additional damage.

Dale Matthews, Citadel's Southern Conference 165-pound champion and son of the Bulldogs' coach, won a split nod over Bob Gregson, of Maryland. It was a close bout and when the decision was announced in favor of Matthews, the spectators voiced their disapproval with two minutes of unbroken booing.

Gov. William Preston Lane, of Maryland, witnessed the show.

The draw gives Maryland a season's record of five victories, two draws and one loss, to Army.

Heavyweight—Kenny Malone (M) decisioned Bill Ohlandt.

Poolsville Romps

Poolesville High took an easy 52-36 decision from St. John's High of Frederick (Md.) last night at the Poolesville gym. Floyd Conrad had 18 points and Jack Rutter 17 for the winners. It was Poolesville's tenth win in 15 games.

Spencer Overton Upset In Florida Semifinal

St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP).—Edwin Priesler of Cleveland, Ohio, upset Medalist Spencer Overton, Maryland Open champion, in the semifinals of the national tournament of golf club champions today.

Briesler, 1946 Ohio amateur titlist, posted a 3 and 2 victory over the Baltimore entry in their 36-hole match.

Friends 8th Graders Win

Donald McIntosh's goal in the last 10 seconds gave Friends a 23-21 victory over Landon in an eighth-grade basketball game at Landon yesterday. Jack Soy of Landon was high point man with 11.

Larry Sure Chandler, 15 Clubs Will Back Him

By Robert Vermillion

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 20 (U.P.)—Leland S. (Larry) MacPhail, former president of the New York Yankees, said tonight that Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers "was lying" when and if he charged that major league club owners voted to keep Negroes out of organized baseball.

Rickey also "was lying," MacPhail declared, when and if he said that copies of the report "were collected to destroy evidence of some recommendations or proposals having to do with participation of Negroes in the major leagues," MacPhail said in a blistering 1500-word statement answering the charges which Rickey made at Wilberforce, Ohio, Monday night.

MacPhail, whose filing of charges and feud with Ricked led to the banishment of Leo Durocher from baseball last year, revealed that he has the only copy of the report which was adopted at a special meeting of major league club owners at Chicago in September, 1946.

That report, Rickey contended in his Wilberforce speech, contained a resolution that Negroes should be kept out of the majors because they would jeopardize the entire investment of organized baseball.

Rickey said that because of that portion and other points made in the report, it was destroyed and he dared club owners and other baseball officials to deny his charges.

MacPhail Accepts Challenge

MacPhail took him up today. He issued the statement from his vacation spot here and in it said that Winston Churchill, prime minister of Great Britain during World War II, must have had Rickey in mind when he said, "there, but for the grace of God, goes God."

MacPhail said, in part:

1: "Rickey was lying if and when he said the committee recommended that Negro players be banned from major league baseball, that Rickey be prevented from signing (Jackie) Robinson.

"2. Rickey was lying if and when he said that 15 major league clubs (all except Brooklyn) voted to approve any such recommendation or took any action of any kind to prevent Rickey or any other club owner from signing Negro players. The commissioner, the president of the two major leagues and the 15 major league clubs will, I am sure, verify this statement.

"3. Rickey was lying if and when he said that copies of the committee's report were collected to destroy evidence of some recommendations or proposal having to do with the participation of Negroes in the major leagues. The printed reports were collected to the request of the commissioner because they contained a criticism of the commissioner, written by me, which the commissioner felt was unfair and not constructive. The committee agreed to delete certain paragraphs. As it was impossible to reprint the report, it was agreed that all copies be collected so that the report, as revised, would be the only signed copy. That report as originally written and revised is and has always been in my possession.

4. "To the best of my knowledge and belief, Rickey never uttered a single word in any baseball meeting previous to the signing of Robinson suggesting or supporting participation of Negro players in the major leagues. On the contrary, when Rickey was appointed with me by the major leagues early in 1945 as a committee of two to study and survey this problem, and report our recommendations at the next meeting, he ducked the issue, and never submitted any recommendations of any kind to either major league. Rickey's conscience apparently was not bothering him in the slightest.

At any rate, Rickey did not specifically charge the committee with making any such recommendation; he did not directly draw the inference that the committee meant to recommend the banning of Negroes. He merely stated his recollection of that particular paragraph in the committee report.

Rickey Says Larry Misses the Point

New York, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers tonight issued the following comment on the statement issued by Larry MacPhail:

"No statement in the Wilberforce address or the press release at the Dodger-Argosy luncheon has been denied in whole or in part by these typically MacPhaillian distortions, untruths and inventions. They are unworthy of further comment."

Writer Claims Larry Passes Up Real Issue

By Red Smith

LARRY MACPHAIL'S response to some observations by Branch Rickey about the Negro in baseball is a shining example of the felicity of expression which made MacPhail one of the most widely discussed personalities in baseball.

The language in which he has couched his rebuttal demonstrates that although he has quit the hurly-burly of the arena for a more tranquil existence among the other ruminants of his Maryland farm, he has not altered his windmill tactics in a squabble.

Perhaps the most noteworthy feature of MacPhail's reply to Rickey is that although he calls Rickey a liar on the basis of a number of things which Rickey did not say, he does not anywhere deny the truth of the one statement Rickey did make.

Rickey said only that in 1946 15 major league ball clubs approved a report which stated that the employment of Negroes in baseball would jeopardize the club owners' investment.

Nowhere, in the entire consignment of Billingsgate which MacPhail has drafted as a reply, is there any denial that the report did include this statement.

In the first place, MacPhail says Rickey lied "if and when" he said the committee recommended that Negro players be barred or that Rickey be prevented from signing Jackie Robinson or any other Negro player.

Perhaps some such recommendation is implicit in a prediction that the employment of Negroes would injure the baseball business. Or perhaps it isn't.

At any rate, Rickey did not specifically charge the committee with making any such recommendation; he did not directly draw the inference that the committee meant to recommend the banning of Negroes. He merely stated his recollection of that particular paragraph in the committee report.

Cleveland Board Suspends Levine, Calls Him 'Unstable'

Cleveland, Feb. 20 (AP).—Artie Levine, well known middleweight who sought a comeback following an eight-month layoff, was suspended indefinitely by the Cleveland Boxing Commission today for "nervous and mental instability."

Dr. A. F. Hagedorn, commission physician, reported he found the 23-year-old Brooklyn fighter had "exaggerated reflexes," was mentally depressed and "simply didn't have the desire to fight again."

Armed Faces Assault in $50,000 Widener Today

Ten Horses Named in Big Test

By Wilbur Jennings

Miama, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP).—The two champions, Armed and Assault, and eight others were named today for the running of the $50,000 Widener at Hialeah tomorrow.

Armed's chances spicked up remarkably this morning when he went 6 furlongs in 1:21.1 for his best workout of the winter. The odds-makers indicated he might be the favorite or at least an even choice with Assault before race time.

Early odds quoted Assault at 6-5 and Armed, 7-5.

Armed, 7-year-old gelding from the Calumet Farm stables, has been ailing recently, and his entry was doubtful until today's remarkable workout.

Both Armed and Assault will carry 130 pounds over the 1¼-mile distance.

Eddie Arcaro arrived from California to handle Assault, a 5-year-old chestnut from King Ranch of Texas.

While it was generally believed Jockey Doug Dodson will be aboard Armed, the assignment was not made immediately. Trainer Jimmy Jones said the decision might not be made until early tomorrow.

The field will line up as follows, in post position order:

Assault, Eddie Arcaro, 130, King Ranch, 6-5; Stud Poker, F. A. Smith, 100, E. E. Voynow, 50; Cable, R. Nash, 108, Mrs. Aksel Wichfeld, 50; Bug Juice, Conn McCreary, 107, Bermill Farms, 30; Incline, Mike Basile, 110, Joe Tucci, 15; Lets Dance, Job Jessop, 111, Sunshine Stable, 20; Armed (no rider), 130, Calumet Farm, 7-5; El Mono, Porter Roberts, 112, Daniel Lamont, 10; Riskolater, Ted Atkinson, 111, Circle M Farm, 10; Respingo, Nicholas Combest, 109, Gustav Ring, 30.

If all 10 horses go and Armed wins, he will boost his earnings to within $60 of the world leading money winner Stymie. Armed already has won $771,200. Stymie's total is $816,060.

Hoyas Send Six Runners to AAU Meet Tonight

Six Georgetown University runners will compete in the sixtieth annual Amateur Athletic Union championships at Madison Square Garden in New York tonight.

The Hoyas, who scored notable successes in the Boston and New York Knights of Columbus meets, have entered Bill Mitchell in the 60-yard high hurdles; Dave Smith in the 1000-yard run and Ed Sause in the "600."

Towson Wrestlers Defeat Catholic, 20-16

Towson Teachers wrestlers gave Catholic University its fourth straight setback, 20-16, yesterday at the Catholic U. gym. In the feature match, Cardinal Billy DeYoung felled Bill Riordan in 1:40 minutes. The win was Towson's second in three starts.

150 in Pin Tourney

More than 150 bowlers from 26 teams will compete in the third Metropolitan Tenpin Bowling Tournament at the Health Center Recreation alleys in Alexandria, starting at 4:30 p. m. today. American Bowling Congress President Johnny Matrino will open the tourney.

Rassle Bout Added

Billy Darnell of Camden, N. J., and 300-pound George Bolas of Chicago, will meet in the semi-windup on next Wednesday night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena.

Only 2 Field Events . . .

Terps' 1st Invitation Track Meet Tonight Draws Stars

Nine schools, including the host team, will compete in Maryland's first invitation track meet tonight in the College Park armory.

Schools entered besides Maryland include North Carolina, North Carolina State, VMI, VPI, Navy, Virginia, Catholic U. and Georgetown.

Only two field events are scheduled—high jump and shot put—and in both Conference champions are entered. North Carolina's Bob Seligman, indoor and outdoor conference titlist, will toss the shot against a field including Navy's Jay Beller, Tony Dostanko, N. C. State and Maryland's Ike Eichorn. The latter set a Conference javelin mark of 189.6 feet last spring.

Favored in the high jump is North Carolina's Moody, who holds the outdoor mark at 6:05.

VPI's 10-man squad, which placed second at Virginia last week, is conceded a good chance for team honors. Four first places were taken by the Gobblers at Charlottesville.

North Carolina's Jim Miller will be favored in the two-mile and an interesting duel in the 660 is expected between Maryland's Ed Matthews and Bob Black of North Carolina.

Trials start at 7:50 p. m. and events scheduled include 60-yard dash, 70-yard high hurdles, 70-yard low hurdles, 660-yard run, 880-yard run, mile, two-mile, mile relay and two-mile relay.

Haas Leads With 67-134

New Orleans, Feb. 20 (AP).—After filing down four of his clubs to meet a protest by Bobby Locke, local golfing pride Fred Haas, jr. swept into a five-stroke lead in the $10,000 New Orleans Open today with a halfway total of 134.

Haas duplicated his opening round with 35-32—67 to pace three pros—Bob Hamilton, Norman Von Nida and Jimmy Thomson, all bunched at 139.

Locke, the South African who has won more than his share of United States tournaments, protested over the depth of grooves in Haas' clubs. When Haas had remedied the situation, Locke said "in my book, Haas is disqualified because what he did today didn't affect the state of his clubs yesterday."

Jimmy Demaret, leading money winners of 1947, walked off the course after eight holes today, reportedly because he was "tired from too much playing and traveling." The field of competition was cut to 62 pros and nine amateurs for the final 36 holes.

Behind the leaders, grouped at 140, were Johnny Revolta, Dick Metz, Cary Middlecoff and Roberto de Vincenzo of Argentina.

Trinity Bows

Maryland Trot Racing Threatened

Baltimore, Feb. 20 (AP).—A Government squeeze on building materials for amusement projects may upset plans for the debut of harness racing with pari-mutuel betting in Maryland this summer.

This became evident today when the Rosecroft Trotting and Pacing Association notified the State Racing Commission it will not be able to start racing May 22.

The association had been assigned May 22-June 19 as running dates for its new track at Oxon Hill in Southern Maryland, but it cannot get materials to complete the plant.

Congress has banned the use of lumber, concrete and the like for such projects.

The Rosecroft group wants the commission to shift the dates to late summer, but Commission Chairman Stuart C. Janney said no revisions will be made because "we might have to change them again later."

The congressional ban may be lifted in the near future, and the commission does not want to make any decision until the announcement is made in Washington.

Meanwhile, a court test developed on plans to erect a harness racing plant at Pimlico airport in Baltimore County. The airport was rezoned yesterday to permit such an undertaking, but opponents said they will appeal the decision and, if necessary, carry the case to the Court of Appeals.

George Gets 25, St. John's Wins, 52-37

Jack George scored 25 points to pace St. John's to a 52-37 victory over Georgetown Prep yesterday at the Prep court. It was the twentieth win in 21 games for the Johnnies.

Prep held the victors to a 15-all tie at the end of the first quarter and trailed by only 7 points at the half. A third-period surge in which George netted 14 points while he and Tom Fannon controlled the backboards gave St. John's its comfortable victory margin.

Virginians Feature Life of Washington's Mother at Ball

"THE DANCING CLASS," fourth scene in the tableau staged by the Society of Virginia of the District at its annual ball in the Shoreham Hotel, includes (from left) Mary Dunaway, Pat Smith, Priscilla Gray, Marjorie Diener and Levin Houston, instructor, a teacher at Mary Washington College

"WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL" is the final scene in the drama. The First President, portrayed by Walter Kelly, bids goodby to his mother, Mary, played by Mrs. M. G. Willis of Fredericksburg, Va.

"... OBEY YOUR SUPERIORS" was the opening scene in which young Washington (standing, center) is told by his mother that he should not go to sea. The program in honor of Mary Washington was staged by students and faculty of Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va.

141 Wardman Tenants Agree To Rent Raises

Senators, Judges, Representatives Among Those Involved

Rents went up for 141 permanent residents of the swanky Wardman Park Hotel yesterday—easily.

The resident tenants, among them senators, representatives, jurists and military brass, not only failed to protest; they agreed to the boost, which averages about 13.42 per cent in all 141 apartments.

Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell approved the request after seeing the tenant approval.

Among those willingly pinched by higher rents, said Cogswell, are: Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), and Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.); Representatives E. E. Cox (D., Ga.), Frank Fellows (R., Me.), and John Phillips (R., Calif.); Generals John P. Smith, Henry D. F. Munnikhuysen and E. S. Bres; Admirals Frank Baldwin, R. W. Hayles and E. J. Foy; and Harold M. Stephens, Chief Justice designate of U. S. Court of Appeals for the District.

Rent increases also were asked yesterday by owners of two large northwest Washington apartment houses. Flat 14 per cent hikes were asked for 117 units at LeBourget apartments, 2127 California st. nw. Present rents range from $25 to $57.50 a month, the application said.

Owners of an apartment house at 1820 Clydesdale pl. nw., want to raise 48 units, now renting for $41 to $69, to $44.25 and $73.75 a month.

Paid Ad Launches St. John's Drive For $5,320,000

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—St. John's College today opened a campaign for $5,320,000 to increase its endowment, finance new buildings and meet current expenses.

The campaign was launched in a unique manner for an educational institution—through a pair advertisement in a New York financial newspaper.

It said the appeal was to "all who share St. John's belief that a tough mental fabric, broad understanding and a free mind are vital for American young men, for men in public life, in the professions, in business and as citizens."

Students at St. John's follow a four-year course based on more than 120 classic books by the world's recognized thinkers of all time rather than an orthodox college curriculum.

Logan Morrill, vice president and treasurer, said $3,700,000 of the goal will be added to the endowment, which is now less than $100,000. Some $500,000 of the endowment is to be earmarked for scholarships.

Court Absolves Railroad In Man's Crossing Death

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—The Court of Appeals ruled today the Western Maryland Railroad was not responsible for the death of Charles E. McLucas of Hagerstown two years ago.

McLucas was struck and killed by a coal car at the company's Lee st. crossing in Hagerstown.

G-Girls Involved

Landlady Convicted In Rent Case

A Washington landlady yesterday was found guilty of violation of the District Rent Control Act.

The defendant, Mrs. Mildred O. Watkins of 5108 3d st. nw., faces sentencing in Municipal Court next Friday to a possible jail term of one year and fine of $1000.

She was chargeed with a seven-month delay in filing for rent ceilings on four apartments she had made in a house at 914 Hamilton st. nw., a delay which netted her $147.50 above the rentals finally allowed by the rent control office

First Case to Reach Jury

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King, who prosecuted, said the case was the first rent control violation here that had not been settled before reaching a jury.

The trial was marked by claims and counterclaims of revenge.

Defense Attorney Ben Lindas charged that the proceedings were instituted by two G-Girl tenants, in retaliation for attempts to evict them from one of the apartments. King countered that eviction proceedings were brought by Mrs. Watkins to "get even" with the women for reporting her to the Rent Control administrator.

Eviction proceedings against Miss Sophie Niemiac, 20, and Mrs. Isabel E. Melia, 25, both employes of the Bureau of Naval Personnel, were settled by stipulation of opposing counsel on January 30 when the wome nagreed to vacate their apartment by July 31.

$60 House Rent Sextupled

The eviction proceedings were begun by Mrs. Wanda Frank of 1540 Maryland ave. ne., a sister of Mrs. Watkins, who leased the house and filed intention of moving into the apartment rented by the G-Girls.

Testimony was given to show that the house, which formerly rented for $60 a month, was converted into four apartments with a total rental of $355. That occupied by the G-Girls rented for $110 a month, another for $105 and the remaining two at $70 each. Last January 23, the rent control office set ceiling rents at $65, $60, $52.50 and $50, respectively.

Although the apartments were rented February, 1947, it was testified, Mrs. Watkins did not file for rent ceilings until September 26.

Spring Grove Hospital To Take Seton Patients

Baltimore, Feb. 20 (AP).—Quarters will be ready at Spring Grove Hospital by June 15 for 97 State and city-supported patients now at Seton Institute, State Engineer John B. Funk said today.

Transfer of the indigent patients was requested by Seton officials some time ago and renovation of a building at Spring Grove to house them has been under way for some time.

When completed, there will be space for 45 or 50 patients on each of the three floors. There are about 50 patients already in one part of the building, and there will be ample room for the Seton group.

One of the Spring Grove cottages also is being improved to allow for more inmates, Funk said.

Lothian Farmer Named Md. Tobacco Inspector

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—Governor Lane appointed J. Edward Prout of Lothian, Anne Arundel County, as State tobacco inspector today.

Prout replaces Russell C. Turner of Bambrills, who died last week. The new inspector has a tobacco farm of more than 300 acres and has worked at raising tobacco since his youth.

Chest Board Approves Plan For Merger

Interim Committee To Meet With Group From Agencies Council

Washington Community Chest trustees yesterday unanimously approved reorganizing with the Washington Council of Social Agencies into the "United Community Services of Washington."

The council unanimously approved the plan Monday.

Lee D. Butler, Washington Chest president, following the trustees' meeting in the United States Chamber of Commerce auditorium, said he and Miss Jane Hoey, acting president of the council, would appoint the interim committee within the next few days.

The committee, consisting of seven members appointed by the Chest and seven by the Council, will start the job of reorganization.

Under the plan Chest and Council functions will be combined in a body seeking the cooperative effort of public and private health and welfare agencies, community organizations and the general public in meeting the social welfare needs of the community.

Doesn't Supplant Drives

Butler pointed out that United Community Services does not supplant the Community Chest Federation's fund-raising activities.

Stephen L. Nelson, assistant Chest director and budget manager, said relationship of member agencies to the UCS will be much the same as they have been with the Chest in the past, but many other organizations will belong to the UCS without receiving funds from it.

"The UCS will provide a strong central focus on the community problems of Washington," he said.

Motion to approve the plan yesterday was made by Albert W. Atwood, a board member, and there was little debate.

Funds Assigned

Because the Chest failed to reach its campaign goal and member agencies' allotments have been pared, Butler said, a procedure has been established whereby an agency has to secure approval from the Chest budget committee and Federation's executive committee before engaging in any separate fund-raising activity.

The Chest's executive committee voted to assign $98,401, or 75 per cent of funds totaling $131,210.41 to the budget committee for distribution to member agencies. The funds include $65,813 forthcoming to the Washington Chest from late campaign receipts. The executive committee will retain the other 25 per cent.

The executive committee also approved allotment of funds to the Council of Social Agencies and Volunteer Service of the Council, on a two-month basis, and a six-month maximum at the discretion of the budget committee, pending formation of UCS.

Court Rules on Use Of Davidsonville Road

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—The Court of Appeals today said Mr. and Mrs. John E. McAuliffe may use an old road near their property in Davidsonville.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. B. Lerch had won a suit in Arundel County Court, preventing the other couple from driving over the dirt road. They claimed they owned the land on which it was situated.

The Appeals Court reversed that decision. Chief Judge Ogle Marbury declared Mr. and Mrs. Lerch failed to prove they had title to the disputed land.

College Needs Study Set

400% Sex Offense Jump Here In 7 Years Is Cited at Hearing

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A House subcommittee yesterday heard medical and law enforcement officials strongly urge passage of legislation to strengthen local laws dealing with sex offenders.

Subcommittee Chairman A. L. Miller, opening the hearing, said sponsors of the legislation felt present District laws for dealing with sex offenders "are outmoded and ineffective." He added:

"The present picture in the District seems worse than in the United States as a whole. Locally there were 360 sexual offenses of all kinds reported between July, 1946, and July, 1947. There were a great many unreported cases. This represents an increase of 400 per cent over 1940, when there were 90 such cases reported."

Miller (R., Nebr.), a doctor, said psychiatrists generally agree that "the sex offender presents a pathological condition which, with proper treatment, can be remedied."

Clinic Here Suggested

James V. Bennett, Federal prison director, suggested setting up a clinic here, like the alcoholic clinic, both to treat individuals and gather data about the scope of the sex-offender problem.

Miller said that such a clinic could be set up possibly in connection with St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Representative George MacKinnon (R., Minn.), author of a bill to apply the District laws covering the insane to dangerous and habitual sex offenders, was a witness.

Miller has introduced a second bill, drafted by United States Attorney George Morris Fay and others, which would increase penalties for sex offenses, particularly those involving children, and also permit treating sex psychopaths at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Urges Rewording

MacKinnon urged that the section dealing with sex psychopaths be modeled on his own bill, which in turn was based on language by which the United States Supreme Court upheld the Minnesota law on sex psychopaths.

Fay testified in support of his own bill, saying it had been drafted with the idea of making a tighter control over sex crimes the first objective. But he said the language of MacKinnon's bill could be substituted.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, said he regarded the proposed legislation as "progressive, significant, and an indication that the law is ready to take advantage of scientific knowledge concerning human behavior."

Dr. Overholser introduced Dr. Benjamin Karpman, senior psychiatrist at St. Elizabeths, as "the man who has had more experience in treating criminal sexual psychopaths than probably anybody in the country."

Agrees With Fay

Karpman told the committee he agreed with Fay that the bill should be aimed at sex criminals. If applied to any sexual psychopath, leaving out the word criminal, the act would become too broad, said Karpman. As one possibility, he suggested that a wife, to avoid having children, could join her husband in abnormal sex practices. Then in the event of a divorce action she could make charges against him under a broadly worded statute, he said.

Karpman also suggested that the practice be followed here of not punishing sex psychopaths for relations in private with their own kind any more than normal individuals are punished for normal sex relations that still are transgressions of accepted standards.

That is the practice in some European countries, he said. The rule is to punish only when the abnormal relations are so conducted as to violate the public sense, he said.

Dr. Karpman then raised a question about where the line was to be drawn in sexual behavior. He pointed out that there are those who have promiscuous, but normal, sex relations. He said he had known of one man who had relations with 300 women in two years, and one woman who had relations with 300 men in six years.

Rep. Almond Sees Tuck, Fails to Disclose Plans

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—Representative J. Lindsay Almond, jr., Virginia attorney general-elect, today conferred with Governor Tuck, but apparently left unanswered the question of when he will resign from Congress.

The Governor had no comment after the conference broke up shortly afternoon. There were indications, however, that Almond would take office here before adjournment of the General Assembly next month.

Virginia SCC Weighs Hospitals' Petition

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission today took under advisement a petition of two Virginia hospitals to become participants in the Virginia Hospital Service Association.

The Winchester Memorial Hospital at Winchester, and the Northampton-Accomack Memorial Hospital, at Nassawadox, asked permission of the SCC to discontinue their own hospital service plans and bevome participant in the plan operated by the VHSA.

Martinsburg Burglar Leaves Clews to Sex

Martinsburg, W. Va., Feb. 20 (AP). Martinsburg police sought today a burglar who made a "clean getaway," and they have reason to believe it was a girl.

Mrs. Paul Blackford came home to find rooms ransackedfi, some clothes missing and about $25 in cash gone.

Sitters' Corps Formed

Winchester, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—A corps of baby sitters has been recruited to care for children of couples attending a series of weekly clinics at the First Baptist Church here. Dr. E. T. Clark, pastor, is leading the discussion on the child and the home, school, and religion.

Blood Bank Visit Slated

Winchester, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.). The Red Cross mobile unit of the blood bank will visit here about April 1. Stewart Bell, jr., is chairman of the local program and will be assisted by Joseph Shroth, O. D. Shank, jr., and Dr. J. A. Miller.

Hicks, Squires To Campaign In Alexandria

Both Candidacies Hinge on Outcome Of Referendum

Two more Alexandria businessmen yesterday announced they will run for city council if the at-large plan wins in the March 2 referendum.

They are Randall J. Hicks, realtor, and David D. Squires, owner of a gasoline service station.

Hicks called the at-large system "more democratic" and termed the ward method of election "conductive to petty politics." He opposed the "principle of drawing an imaginary line around a few city blocks" and preventing those residents from voting for councilmen from other parts of the city.

Squires, a Democrat, said he favors non-partisen election of city officials, but feels the at-lage plan would be a step in the right direction.

Other developments yesterday in the campaign were:

1. Announcement by City Treasurer Roger C. Sullivan of those eligible to vote in the November, 1947 election, plus those who have since qualified for the June, 1948 election.

To be eligible for either election, voters must have paid all assessable capitation taxes six months previous to it, and must have lived in Virginia one year, in Alexandria six months and in their ward 30 days.

Voters may register for the referendum on or before March 1. Registration deadline for the April 6 primary and June 8 election is March 6.

2. Statement by ward supporters, asking people to vote on the issue, not for or against individuals.

The statement called the present method of election (six ward, three at-large) a "basically fair and efficiently workable combination" of both plans.

It pointed out that in every part of the city there is now "a representative no further away than a few blocks from the people of his ward." It warned that under the at-large plan "it is entirely conceivable that great geographical areas of our city would be without a local or interested representative . . ."

Poll on Daylight Time Slated in Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., Feb. 20 (AP). The Martinsburg Chamber of Commerce has directed its public affairs committee to poll sentiment on operation of daylight-saving time here this summer and submit the findings to city council for its guidance.

Last summer the city remained on standard time principally as a result of rural opposition to fast time.

Lane to Name Board For Cheltenham School

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—Governor Lane said today he will name a new board of managers for Cheltenham School for Boys within a few days.

The last board of managers resigned as a body last month after submitting a recommendation to the Governor that he appoint an all-Negro board to govern the Negro school. The recent board included both Negroes and whites.

O'Neil Again

Bond Forfeit Appeal Put In Fay's Lap

Bondsman William J. O'Neil, who unwittingly touched off the current controversy between Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott and George Morris Fay, United States Attorney for the District, had another headache yesterday.

The bondsman appeared before Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech in District Court to ask restoration of a $1000 bond that had been declared forfeited February 11 in a separate case.

Keech had ordered the forfeiture when the deefndant, Joseph Diggs, 2536 Georgia ave. nw., accused of housebreaking, larceny and forgery, failed to appear for trial.

Diggs was finally apprehended by deputy United States marshals on information supplied by O'Neil and it was on this ground that O'Neil requested the forfeiture be set aside.

Keech asked Assistant United States Attorney Sylvan Schwartz what he thought of the idea. Schwartz, apparently mindful of the Scott-Fay imbroglio, replied he'd have to confer with Fay before venturing an opinion. Keech then held the matter in abeyance.

Later, Schwartz and Fay conferred, but neither would comment except for a statement from Schwartz that he would make an announcement "to the court" as early as possible.

Earlier in the week, the district attorney's office indirectly saved O'Neil $800 in forfeitures by quashing four of five charges lodged against a client of O'Neil's who had left town.

In reply, Fay wrote a sizzling letter to the judge demanding the latter retract "calumny."

Attorney General Tom Clark, Fay's superior, has not yet seen the letter, it was learned yesterday. Clark had been out of tow-

Lawyer's Absence Postpoes Trials Of 2 Policemen

The Police Trial Board yesterday continued scheduled hearings on charges against Pvt. Robert C. Redding, 45, of No. 5 Precinct and Pvt. Raymond V. Taylor, of the Traffic Division, because of the absence of Charles E. Ford, defending counsel in both cases.

Redding, who faces a charge of having been under the influence of liquor while on duty, has been suspended since February 5. Previous charges of neglect of duty, failing to patrol his beat and failing to communicate wtih his station were heard on January 23, and the board postponed a ruling.

Taylor is charged with wearing a uniform while off duty, conduct prejudicial to the Police Department, and making untruthful statements to superior officers.

Warrenton, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—The annual banquet of the Volunteer Fire Department here was held last night at the fire house, with ham and turkey served by the ladies' auxiliary. O. C. Davis is president; Preston B. Ruffner, chief; W. F. Brittle, secretary-treasurer, and the Rev. Paul D. Bowden, chaplain.

Center Manager Named

Leesburgh, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Appointment of Dabney Simpson as manager of the new Middleburg Community Center has been announced by the board of directors. The center is under construction and is expected to be completed next fall.

U. S. Workers Plan Exodus Over Weekend

Weather Is Factor As Thousands Prepare For Holiday Respite

Washington last night prepared to kick off a long holiday weekend, to be highlighted by numerous tributes to the man who gave this city its name.

Thousands of Federal and District workers, on a three-day vacation because of George Washingtons' birthday, left or prepared to abandon the city by rail, bus, plane and auto.

Colder Weather Due

Generally colder weather was in store over the week-end for both traveler and stay-at-home, with the possibility of rain mixed with snow

Right again, the Weatherman is now batting .800

Locally, the weatherman said today would be fair, with a high temperature in the middle 30s, and the mercury dropping to 25 in the city and 18 in the suburbs tonight.

North of here as far as New England it will be definitely fair today, he said. South into the Carolinas, he expects cloudiness, but no rain. The forecast of possible rain and a little snow late tomorrow or Monday goes for the entire area, he said.

Hotel men and rail and airline travel agents were expecting business to be "a little better than usual." The American Automobile Association expressed the belief that cold weather had "put a crimp" into long distance travel plans by automobile.

For stay-at-home residents, dozens of events were scheduled over the three-day weekend. Rites marking the 216th birthday of Washington were slated by numerous civic and fraternal organizations. Dozens of wreaths will be laid on Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon.

Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin, jr., (R., Mass.) is scheduled to deliver the principal address at a Veterans of Foreign Wars birthday dinner celebration tonight at 7 at Hotel Statler. Invitations have been sent to all cabinet members, the Governors of the 13 original States, ranking military officers and many members of Congress.

The American Legion will sponsor services at Mount Vernon tomorrow. Attorney General Tom Clark will make the principal address of the day over a Nation-wide hookup beginning at 1:30 p. m.

Most downtown stores will stay open until 1 p. m. Monday.

With District Government employes also holidaying, collections of garbage, trash and ashes will be a day late in the early part of the week, according to William Xanten, director of the division of sanitation.

C. & P. Hearing March 16

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. rate increase case will be reopened before the State corporation commission here March 16.

Area News in Brief

PBA Lets Mansion In Suitland for $205

The Public Building Administration sat back and rubbed its hands as gleefully as a landlord with a new tenant yesterday.

It was one.

The PBA's 8-year-old, $35,000, six-bedroom-and-porch-with-a-fireplace mansion in Suitland, Md., is about to have a $205-a-month tenant. The imposing house at 4510 Silver Hill rd., went on the rental block a month ago, but PBA could only snicker at a rent bid of $75 a month.

Yesterday, after more advertising for bids, it received 32 offers, highest of which was Frank G. D'Acre's $205. D'Acre lives at 3411 63d ave., Hyattsville, Md. Lowest bid yesterday was $86.

PBA acquired the mansion, built by O. L. Minear in 1940, when it purchased land for contemplated Government buildings.

Fraternity Fete Tonight

The Rev. John M. Walsh, dean of men at Catholic University, will be inducted as an honorary member of the Phi Kappa Fraternity, Omega Chapter, at a buffet supper at 5 p. m. today at the Hotel Twenty-Four Hundred, 2400 16th st. nw.

Speakers will include the Right Rev. Msgr. P. J. McCormick, rector of the university, the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Hart, chapter moderator, the Rev. Walter J. Schmitz, S. S., of the Sulpician House of Studies at Catholic University, the chapter said yesterday.

Car Registration Speeded

The District is "streamlining" procedures for issuing registrations, titles and tags to owners of new autos, Assistant Engineer Commissioner L. E. Cox revealed yesterday. The new system, already in operation, is expected to cut the waiting time of applicants from 45 to about 15 minutes, he said. Main speedup feature is issue of temporary titles. Permanent titles are sent applicants later by mail, Cox revealed.

Doctors Get Parking Cards

Physicians who are members of the District Medical and Medico-Chirurgical Societies have been issued special emergency parking cards, the police department announced yesterday. The police warned the cards, permitting otherwise illegal parking, must be used for urgent professional business only.

6 False Alarms Jam Traffic

Six false alarms, four occurring within 11 minutes, plagued the Fire Department yesterday, and tied up downtown morning traffic.

Between 8:19 and 8:30 a. m., four calls from excited women sparked 23 pieces of fire equipment into action, racing around the vicinity of 11th and G, 15th and H, and 4th and Rhode Island ave. nw.

Firemen, playing back the records which record all alarms, feel the first two phony calls, and the second two came from two different women. The two false alarms turned in during the afternoon apparently had no relation to the morning incident.

$50 Fine in Gun Toting

Leon Dillard, 30, of 3458 S. 22d st., Arlington, was fined $50 and given a 60-day suspended sentence in Arlington County Court yesterday on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

The case of Utha Wilson, 28, of 808 S. 22d st., arrested with Dillard and facing the same charge, was continued until next Friday. Both were indicted by the grand jury Monday.

Fowl Ban Ruled Invalid

A Takoma Park, Md., ordinance prohibiting the keeping of fowl and animals was declared unconstitutional yesterday by Judge Stedman. Prescott. of. Montgomery County Circuit Court.

The ruling was in answer to a suit filed by Harry P. Dodge of 317 Birch ave., Takoma Park, who refused to let the city legislate him out of his chickens and pigeons without a fight.

Judge Prescott said the mere keeping of animals does not necessarily mean they are a nuisance.

Dodge, a builder, who is married and has three children, said he keeps 35 chickens and 30 pigeons in his back yard as a hobby.

In arguing the case for Dodge, former State's Attorney Joseph H. Simpson, jr., pointed out the ordinance also prohibited the keeping of such pets as goldfish, squirrels, canaries and parrots.

Sauter on Hospital Board

Montgomery County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter has been unanimously elected a member of the board of trustees of Surburban Hospital, Bethesda. He will fill the vacancy left by the resignation of William L. Lebling. It is the first time in the four-year history of the hospital that a county commissioner has been chosen for the board.

Fredericksburg Forms Sportsman's Club

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—An adult recreation program for persons over 20 years of age was formally inaugurated here last night with the organization of a Sportsman's Club by City Recreation Director John L. Fenlon.

Officers of the club are J. V. O'Toole, president; Bladen O. Billingsley, vice president, and Arthur G. Wholey, secretary-treasure.

Church Trustees Held Agents Before Court

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—The Court of Appeals handed down a ruling which instructs Maryland churches desiring to file law suits to do so through their trustees.

The court added, however, that if the trustees would not sue in keeping with the will of the majority, they could be named in a complaint to the court.

'Blow Justified'

Man Loses Suit Against Policeman

A District Court jury yesterday dismissed a damage suit against a Metropolitan policeman which accused him of unwarranted assault with a blackjack.

The suit, for $15,000, had been brought by Aubrey F. Powers, 1000 I st. nw., against Pvt. John E. Strobel of the Ninth Precinct.

Powers was renting the upstairs quarters in Strobel's home at the time of the alleged assault last January 16.

The policeman had testified that he had complained to Powers and the latter's parents a number of occasions about noise and profanity.

He said that on January 16 he was drawn upstairs by noise and that after he put Powers under arrest for drunkenness, the latter and Powers' father grabbed him and threatened to throw him downstairs.

It was then, he said, that he struck Powers with a blackjack in order "to maintain the arrest."

Powers was fined $10 in Municipal Court later on charges of being drunk in a house.

Chemical Plant Work Proves Good Defense

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—The fact that Charles E. Griffin works in a Hagerstown chemical plant helped free him today of a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Griffin testified before Judge Joseph D. Mish that all he had to drink on the day of his arrest was a glass of sweet cider.

He explained he was wearing his work clothes and they emit the odor of alcohol and other chemicals.

State Police testified the 30-year-old defendant smelled as if he had something stronger to drink.

"There are some unusual factors in this case," said Judge Mish and he acquitted Griffin.

Mrs. Jane W. Sayler

Mrs. Jane Wampler Sayler, mother of Maj. Gen. Henry B. Sayler of 3219 Klingle rd. nw., died at her home in Huntington, Ind., yesterday following a two-week illness.

General Sayler, chief of research and development, Ordnance division, was with his mother when she died. She was the widow of John Milton Sayler.

Funeral services will be held in Huntington Monday.

Rush-Hour Traffic Victim . . .

The Washington Post

WOMAN HOSPITAL-BOUND—Marjorie Thompson, 20, of Silver Spring, Md., is placed in an ambulance after being hurt in a traffic accident yesterday about 4:20 p. m. at 2d and D sts. nw. Police said she was a passenger in an auto driven by Richard Poling, 25, also of Silver Spring, Md., which was in collision with a coal truck. The truck driver, police said, was Benton West, 28, of 1901 6th st nw. Miss Thompson, her injuries pronounced not serious, was admitted to Casualty Hospital

'Showboat' To Replace Old Music Barge

The Water Gate orchestra barge will be replaced this year by a $65,000 "showboat."

Construction is now underway on the new boat which will have facilities for theatrical performances as well as concerts. Workmen are putting up the superstructure on a 130-foot barge anchored at the foot of 29th st. nw.

The "showboat," designed by William Haussmann, National Capital Parks architect, will have two floors of dressing rooms on either side of the stage and a removable orchestra shell.

Special acoustical equipment will be installed that will disperse the sound, improving it over last year, Haussmann said.

Hospital Finance Hearings Postponed

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) yesterday postponed House District subcommittee hearings on a District hospital finance bill from Monday to next Friday.

The bill would authorize Federal building grants to Washington hospitals which are not taking part in the proposed hospital center.

Red Cross to Ask $6480

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—The Fredericksburg Red Cross will ask for a total of $6480 in its annual drive beginning March 1, Campaign Chairman DuVal Q. Hicks, jr., announced today. Of that sum, $3180 will be retained for local purposes and $3300 turned over to the national organization.

2 Government Girl Winners Leave for 9 Days in Bermuda

Two excited Government Girls took off for Bermuda yesterday and a nine-day round of gaiety.

The pair, who drew numerous admiring glances at Washington National Airport before leaving in a DC-4 at 4:20 p. m., were winners in the "Miss Government Girl" contest sponsored by The Washington Post.

Gini MacNaught, 20, of 4615 21st st. nw., No. 1 choice, wore her dark hair long and "slinky" and skirt and blouse combination that made her look like a sophisticated little girl. Her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. MacNaught, and other relatives, were there to see her off.

Audrey Hall, also 20, of 4015 4th st., nw., second choice, waved goodbye to a host of relatives and friends and her boss at the Agriculture Department. The latter, Paul Darby, of 411 Galveston rd., Silver Spring, described her as "very efficient besides being cute."

She took along some psychology books to bone up for an exam at George Washington University, where she studies at night—but she didn't expect to use them.

The girls, in addition to receiving the Bermuda junket as a gift from the World-Wide Travel Service Corp., will be featured in a sequence of the Mary Worth comic strip in The Washington

Two Injured As Coal Truck, Auto Collide

Two automobile passengers were injured yesterday afternoon in a collision with a coal truck at 2d and D sts. nw.

According to police, they were Miss Marjorie Thompson, 20, of Route 2, Silver Spring, Md., who was admitted to Casualty Hospital for observation, suffering from lacerations and abrasions, and Arthur E. Roy, 29, 6210 Georgia ave. nw., given first aid at Casualty for knee lacerations.

The auto operator, Richard Poling, 25, also of Route 2, Silver Spring, and the truck driver, Benton Vest, 28, 1901 6th st. nw., were uninjured, police said.

The car was reportedly going west on D st. nw., and the truck, north on 2d st. nw.

Mme. Bonnet Speaks at Congressional Club Tea

Approximately 350 wives of the Nation's lawmakers turned out yesterday afternoon to hear Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, describe conditions in her country. Occasion was the Congressional Club's weekly tea at the clubhouse, 2001 New Hampshire ave. nw.

Mme. Bonnet told the group that should they visit Paris in June, they would find it beautiful and at least artificially gay; that the French people would put on a happy front, save up their food in order to give them famed hospitality. "But beneath the facade, you'll still find people hungry and in need of clothing," she explained.

She pointed out that visiting Americans often obtained the wrong impression on visits to France. They think all people live in expensive hotels. She compared it to the Frenchmen's impression of Americans when he saw this country only through New York's Waldorf.

In brief, Mme. Bonnet said that the Parisians are putting on a good front for tourists in order to obtain American dollars to buy such essentials as wheat and coal. As for the expensive fashions, she commented, "the fashion industry is purely a business proposition" few native French women can afford to buy the models.

"If the French people ask for $100 it means that they really need that much," she emphasized, "believe me, we need it."

Following the program, Mrs. Clifford Davis, club president, and Mme. Bonnet received guests.

Miss Cajigas Feted at 'Walnut Hill'

At Walnut Hill, home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold, friends of Miss Anita Cajigas gathered yesterday afternoon for cocktails. The popular bride-elect was accompanied by her fiance, Flying Officer Clarence George Mattusch and her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas.

. . . reporting from Paris

This is a resume of the fashion picture in Accessories as I have seen it:

BLOUSES:
Many tied with an immense bow at throat.
Dior uses the same medium, however necklines are plunged in narrow V to the waistline.

HAIR:
Sleeks, upswept with fringe of bangs or large bun at back, placed even with top of head ending in line with ear.

HATS:
Dior showed many coolie type hats, in various sizes with flower or shell flower trim.

SHOES:
Opera pump, with very pointed toe and huge beaded standing buckles. Bronze leather being used to quite an extent. Dior showed the same style translated in many varied patterns. Fath has a suede ballet show in muted colors, laced with wide contrasting ribbons for beachwear.

GLOVES:
Are more than ever part of the ensemble and are made in matching fabric. Some short and some twenty-button length or more.

TRIMMINGS:
White pique, striped and polka dot taffetas used widely in belts, bandings, blouses and petticoats. Colored beads match dresses. Eight to ten strands worn closely fitted around the throat. Dior uses pearls and more pearls, all lengths, also continues with ice jewelry. Matching bracelets are worn on both arms.

BELTS:
Leather, shaped to fit the figure and are from one to four or five inches in width.

COLORS:
Navy is shown everywhere and the muted colors are luscious. They have the appearance of being dropped in a pot of brilliant color and then softened with black or brown. Most notable are mauve, browns, cinder gray, sage green, faded blue, clear colors. The definite tones are pinks, yellow, coral.

FABRICS:
Rustle and will continue to rustle. Striped, checked and flowered taffetas. For summer, beautiful cotton eyelets and cool embroidered linens. Chantilly laces in melting pastels are seen in every house. Satin and faille are seen, some sheer chiffons and remarkably few crepes.

Wives of Air Force Officers Turn Models for Style Show

By Peggy Preston

THE CURRENT vogue for fashion shows that is sweeping Washington took a new twist at the Officers' Club at Andrews Air Force base last night.

It started out to be a traditional style parade displaying spring and summer clothes. But instead of using professional models, wives of officers of the club decided to wear the costumes themselves. Their purpose was double: first, to have model fees and hence put more money in the club fund; and second, it's fu to wear new clothes, even if they are not your own.

Members of the club and their guests saw the show at 8 p. m. in the lounge, where the models moved about among the tables, disdaining the formal runway type of modeling. Among those showing ensembles were Mrs. Jacob L. Brause, Mrs. R. D. Elliott, Mrs. Herschel H. Green, Mrs. William C. Lewis, Mrs. Wilson G. Hall, Mrs. Bela A. Harcos, Mrs. Donald A. Needham, Mrs. Frank Rogers, Mrs. Raymond V. Schwanbeck, Mrs. Herbert I. Shingler, Mrs. Julius E. Smith and Mrs. Woodfin M. Sullivan.

Mrs. Frank R. Henry did the commentary for the show. General chairman was Mrs. Stewart B. Walker and members of the committee included Mrs. Bert Gray, Mrs. J. W. Dixon, Mrs. Harry R. Casselman, Mrs. E. H. Montgomery and Mrs. Francis N. Thompson.

TEENAGERS and members of the entire junior set have decided tastes in fashion, as any fond mother or patient saleswoman will tell you.

So strong, in fact are their opinions that they are influencing policy makers right at the top of the fashion industry. Designers are taking careful note of their ideas, notions and fads before attempting to make new clothes for them. And why not? After all, it was the juniors who wholeheartedly espoused the long skirt mode and helped put over the "New Look."

One designer who has come to the conclusion that she had better listen to the girl who wears her clothes, is pretty, blond Virginia Spears, who creates for Minx Modes.

Miss Spears is in Washington this weekend with 21 pieces from her new spring collection. She will show them today at Woodward & Lothrop at 11:30 a. m. and 12:30 p. m.

Yesterday she explained her method of determining just what the fashion whims of her young customers are. Last year she sent out questionnaires to 2000 girls, asking for their preferences in colors, fabrics and styles, etc. She recived 1400 replies and from them worked out her line for this season.

Juniors (girls from 15 to 18) this year prefer:

1. Bright colors, such as green and red instead of black and brown which they once liked for "date" dresses.

2. Stiff fabrics, including taffeta, silk worsted, etc., rather than crepe and satin.

3. Long skirts for all types of clothes.

4. At least two evening dresses.

5. The ballerina type dress only as a short evening frock and not to be worn for dates or in the afternoon.

Your Question On Homemaking

What is the best way to store linens and blankets? E. McC.

All the articles to be stored should be absolutely clean. It's better for linens to be minus bluing and starch, especially the latter since insects feed on it. Fold the clean linen lightly with as few creases as possible, place crushed tissue paper within the folds, wrap in an old sheet or white paper and store in box, trunk, or chest in a dry place.

In storing blankets, place them loosely in box or trunk with a generous amount of moth crystals between the folds and in the box. If card-board boxes are used, wrap them in heavy paper and seal the edges to make them airtight. If a trunk is used, it's a good idea to seal the blankets in heavy paper inside trunk. Always remember that if blankets are packed too tightly they may lose some of their resiliency with a possible sacrifice of their warmth giving qualities.

PETUNIA!

The candles glow . . .
The linen's fine . . .

I even made
The olives shine!

Very effective, Petunia! If you put about 2 tablespoonfuls of vegetable oil on top of the liquid in the olive jar, the olives will be oiled when you take them out and they won't get dry and dull.

Bishop-Bracken

I have a red and white checked bathrobe made of quilted rayon taffeta upon which I spilled coffee with cream. I tried to remove the stains with soap and water but only succeeded in making the material sort of pucker up. What can I do to remedy the situation? C. N.

Glycerine (or a soapless shampoo) should be helpful in removing the coffee stain. Sponge spot with lukewarm water. Then apply glycerine and rub lightly between the hands. Let stand for half an hour, then rinse by sponging with water over a pad. If a grease spot from cream remains after the spot dries, sponge with cleaning fluid. Pressing with a warm iron afterward may be necessary to smooth out the material.

How is sodium perborate used in bleaching white woolens and can it be used to remove dyes? B. R. Z.

If you wish to bleach an entire woolen garment, soak for a half hour or longer in sodium perborate and soapsuds (4 tablespoons perborate to 1 pint of soapy water.) Rinse thoroughly afterward in clear water. While this bleach may remove "fugitive" dye which has gotten on material from another garment, it is not strong enough to bleach out a colored fabric.

What is the word taken from the Bible, I believe, starting with a "J" that is symbolic of love and wedded bliss? It is oftentimes engraved in a man's wedding ring. I. E. B.

I wonder if you can be thinking of the Hebrew word "Mizpah" which is often engraved in wedding rings? It stands for the wish: "The Lord watch between me and these while we are absent one from another."

How can I remove a stain on a thick Chinese rug caused by spilling yellow food coloring on it? The coloring washes out of clothing in the washing machine, but using water on the rug merely smeared the spots so that they look worse than ever. F.B.R.

One of the foam type of rug and upholstery shampoos should be helpful in getting out this spot. Of course, you may wind up with a cleaned circle on the rug that will contrast with the surface around it. However, it's not a good idea to attempt shampooing the whole rug unless it is a small one.

Fur can be cleaned by dampening corn meal or sawdust with a dry-cleaning solvent (such as carbon tetrachloride) and rubbing this well into the fur with your hands. Then shake, brush and air the fur. It will probably be necessary to repeat this treatment several times. Even then, it may not get the muff as white as you want it. About the only way to do that would be to rip the muff apart and wash the fur in warm, mild soapsuds. Afterwards, the fur should be rinsed and as much water as possible squeezed out as an excess of moisture hardens the pelt. Hang fur up by edges so air can circulate on both sides as it dries. If skin hardens, work between hands before it is dry. When thoroughly dry, shake and brush until fur is fluffy.

What is the best method of treating a dust cloth so it will absorb the lint and dust from furniture instead of just pushing it around? I keep a thin, protective coat of wax on my furniture. W. E. L.

Use clean, soft, lintless cloths, such as cheesecloth. Wring out each square in 1 quart hot water to which 3 tablespoons lemon oil have been stirred. Dry cloths thoroughly. Wash and treat cloths often to keep them from dragging an accumulation of dust over your furniture.

D. C. Man Gets 20 Years in Fatal Shooting

Gogill Harris, 533 Irving st. nw., yesterday was sentenced to serve from 20 years to life for the second-degree murder of Willie J. Johnson, 1412 Underwood st. nw., October 14, 1947.

Sentence was pronounced by Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech in District Court. Harris had been convicted of slaying Johnson with a pistol as the latter lay in bed in a house at 1608 Vermont ave. nw.

Elizabeth Brown received a one-to-5 year sentence for manslaughter in connection with the stabbing of Albert Mallory last November. Miss Brown had pleaded self defense. She said Mallory had beaten her in a house at 127 Chews ct. nw.

Ralph Frazier, 329 Virginia ave. se., and James E. Harris, 322 Broads ct. sw., were sentenced to from 5 to 15 years for the robbery of a grocer.

Lester Pressley, 405 1st st. se., drew a 4-to-14 year term for attempting to rob a liquor store proprietor last December.

CAB Examiner Urges Revocation Of Sisto's License

A Civil Aeronautics Board examiner yesterday recommended revoking the license of the pilot blamed for the upside-down flight of an American Airlines plane last October 8 in New Mexico.

The pilot was Charles R. Sisto of Los Angeles, who resigned his air line job after the accident near Mount Riley. Most of the 54 persons aboard were tossed to the roof of the plane, but escaped serious injury.

The recommendation made by Examiner Joseph R. Caldwell, jr., will be effective March 19, unless appealed. Sisto then would be unable to get another license for a year.

Testimony at a CAA hearing in Los Angeles showed that Sisito turned over the controls to John Beck of Memphis, Tenn. who was making his first flight in a DC-4 plane.

Sisto took over the observer's seat and secretly flipped a device that locked the flight controls. The plane zoomed upward.

Beck tried to bring the ship level, but it continued to climb. Then Sisto released the lock, the plane turned over and shot downward.

Before it was righted by another pilot, it had plunged to within 500 feet of the ground.

100 Rams Due to Make Staunton Sale Best Yet

Staunton, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—An expected 100 head of sheep valued at about $14,000 should make the seventh annual Eastern Stud Ram Sale here June 16-17 the biggest in the history of the event, an official said today.

Southdown and Hampshire entries already have been received from several Virginia and West Virginia breeders and inquiries have been received from Pennsylvania, Missouri and North Carolina, Secretary George W. Litton of the sponsoring Virginia Purebred Sheep Breeders Association reported.

Efforts are being made by the Staunton Chamber of Commerce, Litton said, to have the Eastern National Sheep Dog Field Trials held here at the same time as the ram sale.

Home-Canned Products Increase in Virginia

Blacksburg, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—Nearly eight million quarts of food were canned in the State last year under the guidance of home demonstration agents, Maude E. Wallace, assistant director of Virginia Agricultural Extension Service, reported today.

Miss Wallace said in another phase of the conservation program wider use of lockers made possible the freezing of 1,500,000 pounds of food.

Bus Passenger Gets 18 Years in Stabbing

An all-white jury convicted Marvin Card of assault with intent to murder.

Police Raid Big 'Numbers' Establishment

Police yesterday raided a numbers clearing house estimated to be doing a daily business of $10,000.

The raid resulted from an anonymous tip about 1 p. m. to the First Precinct Station that a "murder" was being committed on the fourth floor of 927 G st. nw., police said.

Precinct Capt. Robert C. Pearce, Sergt. Abel Mann and Pvt. W. J. Gaylor hastily responded to the call, but found a heavy door barred them at the fourth-floor landing.

A voice inside asked: "Who is it?"

"The police," the captain said he replied loudly. There was no reply but the police heard footsteps rushing tothe rear.

The officers confiscated two telephones, a portable radio, four adding machines, a large quantity of number slips, racing forms and dope sheets.

William Joseph Matera, 43, of 2216 North Capitol st., was charged with possession of lottery slips and with operating a lottery. He was released on $1500 bond. The other man arrested on the premises was released without charge.

Captain Pearce, who suffered a cut hand in forcing the door, described the suite as a clearing house for numbers writers, and estimated that "this place easily did $10,000 a day." The telephone book lists the suite in the name of Capital Concessions Co.

The raid was unusual in that it was conducted by precinct officers. Customarily, numbers raids are carried out by the vice squad.

Truck Driver Held In Traffic Death Of D. C. Nurse

Gordon Mumford, 20-year-old District truck driver, was held for the grand jury yesterday on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the January traffic death of Miss Betty Lou Parcell, registered nurse at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Miss Parcell, 22, of 2314 19th st. nw., injured in a crash while en rote to a New Year's Eve party, was the District's first 1948 traffic victim. Her injuries included a brain hemorrhage, skull fracture and head lacerations.

Mumford of 1526 Good Hope rd. se., who was treated for a lacerated lip and rib fracture, was charged with drunken driving and failing to give right away. He crashed head-on intothe car while turning at Nichols ave. and South Capitol st., police said yesterday.

Mumford was released on $1000 bond on order of Judge Richmond B. Keech of District Court.

Ukraine Charges U. N. Took Sides With Dutch

Lake Success, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Soviet Ukraine charged today that the United Nations was protecting the Dutch in their conflict with the Indonesian Republic.

Delegate Vassily A. Tarasenko leveled his accusation specifically against a Security Council three-nation good offices committee.

Tarasenko also said the Netherlands agreed to let the let the United States "participate in the exploitation of Indonesian resources in return for help in crushing the Indonesians."

The Soviet attack held up a Council vote on a plan to send the good offices committee back into the field A ballot is expected tomorrow.

Markova-Dolin Ballet Pleases Audience at Constitution Hall

By Paul Hume

The Markova-Dolin ballet company arrived in Constitution Hall last night, to the great pleasure of a large audience.

Any company headed by Alicia Markova assures its observers of moments of supreme beauty. Markova has no equal today in the ease and consummate grace with which she invests the ballerina's traditional duties. Her exquisite portrait of the Dying Swan places her at the head of all dancers we have seen this year.

Markova is surrounded by eight young dancers of unusual talent. Bettina Rosay and Wallace Seibert brought storms of applause for their brilliant, if a trifle athletic, Black Swan, and Roszika Sabo and Oleg Tupine distinguished themselves on each of their appearances.

Anton Dolin, Miss Markova's leading man, is competent enough in standard assignments but his Hymn to the Sun routine was more than a trifle amusing, though amusement was not its purpose. Robert Zeller, the conductor, provided well-marked accompaniments, in the face of malodorous instrumental goings-on.

While all this was transpiring in Constitution Hall, we ducked out for a quick listen in the Department of Interior Auditorium to hear the local concert debut of Eleanore Searle Whitney, listed as coloratura soprano soloist with the Air Force Concert Orchestra.

Keeping things properly within the family, Mrs. Whitney, is the wife of the Assistant Secretary for Air, she first sang Haydn's "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," and then Butterfly's big aria from act two of Puccini's "Madame Butterfly."

Her voice is by no means coloratura, a term much misunderstood these days. It is a good-sized lyric, with velvety quality of strong appeal. Less at ease in her first song, the soloist delivered Butterfly's lines with ease, good style, and a remarkably beautiful pianissimo. Her dramatic effects were telling, and the final high phrase rode the orchestra with ease.

Chile Reports 'Atomic Ore' In Antarctic

Santiago, Chile, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Chilean President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla is bringing back from Antarctica samples of what he believes to be uranium ores, extracted from the lands he has just "annexed" below Cape Horn.

In a statement radioed from the Navy transport President Pinto, the President said. "Our technical personnel in the expedition have found minerals that make possible the presence of uranium."

He did not fear that any armed clash will result from his action in annexing lands now in dispute between Britain on one side and Argentina and Chile on the other. Navy units of the three countries are now enroute to the Horn.

"There is no justification for powers outside this hemisphere to create an Antarctic problem," he declared.

"Only Chile and Argentina have rights in that sector and I believe they will never conflict," he said.

He reiterated that Chilean rights in Antarctica are based on Spanish definitions, dating to the sixteenth century, when Chile was a Spanish colony, subsequently ratified in the nineteenth century by President Bernardo O'Higgins, "father of Chilean independence," and additionally perfected 50 years ago, when the Chilean government authorized whalers from Punta Arenas to occupy the Antarctic islands.

John H. T. Briscoe Is Sworn in as States Attorney

Leonardtown, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—John H. T. Briscoe was swore in as State's attorney for St. Marys County yesterday to succeed the late C. Henry Camalier.

The position had been vacant since the death of Camalier on January 16. Briscoe is a 57-year-old attorney and previously served as State's attorney from 1920 to 1935. He served one term as Democratic member in the House of Delegates under Governor O'Conor.

A native of St. Marys County, he is a graduate of Loyola College, Baltimore, and studied law in the offices of Chief Judge William M. Loker and Robert C. Combs. He is currently serving as attorney to the county commissioners.

Cherry Pie Baking Title Won by City Dweller

Chicago, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—A city girl showed some country 4-H girls today how to bake a cherry pie.

Miss Valeria Johnson, 17, a Chicago high school senior, won first prize in the national cherry pie baking contest.

The other girls, five of them 4-H Club members, had won State contests before coming to Chicago.

Valeria was awarded a trip to Washington where she will present a pie to Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson.

BARNABY

I thought your cousin was a chemical engineer, Ellen.
He is. I guess it's why the advertising agency put him on this drug account.
He may have to visit the Blatus plant in Westville. If he does, let's invite him to stay here with us, John.
Sure.
Perhaps your parents know of a talented advertising man who can help your old Fairy Godfather with this terrific eyewash campaign.
I'll see.
Your Uncle Ralph may come to visit us soon, Barnaby. He's in the advertising business—

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

John Will Help George Celebrate His Birthday Tomorrow

My mathematical mind tells me that approximately 1/365th of our population will tomorrow celebrate their personal birthdays as well as George Washington's.

CREED

But among all those born on February 22, John P. Creed of 121 C st. se. is probably unique.

His son was born on St. Patrick's Day, his mother on the Fourth of July, and his grandmother on Christmas Day.

District Liner Creed, who runs an elevator on the House side of the Capitol, will be 76 years young tomorrow. He points out that being born on a holiday has its advantages:

"Sometimes a fellow gets an extra day off."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three 2-month-old part-Persian kittens." (Sligo 9135.)

"Male dog, about six months old, needs home in country." (Dupont 2650).

"Two very cute female puppies, about 10 weeks old." (Elmwood 879, McLean, Va.)

RIGHT PEW, BUT . . .

The city desk of The Washington Post had a few anxious moments yesterday morning.

As soon as Lawyer Nathaniel J. Ely of 2112 Ross rd., Silver Spring, Md., opened his paper and saw that picture, he began to bristle. In a matter of moments, he was registering his complaint with the city desk.

"Our party had table No. 23," he announced firmly, "and we were definitely there.

"Our little girl, Ilona Gale, developed an earache during the afternoon, so Mrs. Ely left the White House reception early, and went home to look after her.

"That made us late to the dinner, and we must have arrived after your photographer took that picture.

"Now it appears that we didn't attend—whereas we did; and it appears that we're revolting against the party—which we're not."

"Gulp," replied the man on the desk with great presence of mind. "Gulp. Let me check on that and call you back."

Then began a worried review of the facts, but that just made the situation seem all the more impossible. Our reporters at the dinner had watched table No. 23 all night—just to make sure it wouldn't be occupied by latecomers. They stood their ground; nobody had sat at No. 23.

At that moment the phone rang again.

"This is Nathaniel Ely again, and I'd like to apologize for putting you to so much trouble. I've just noticed that the empty table you pictured was No. 23 at the Mayflower dinner. The empty one which we belatedly filled was No. 23 at the Statler. Forgive me."

WILL IT CURE OR KILL?

If you can't keep your calm
Just try the latest rage:
The cure-all atom balm.

MISCELLANY

Members of the Arlington Lions Club tell me that more than 55,000 Lions won perfect attendance awards for last year by faithfully showing up at all meetings. I wish the District Lion could show a record like that . . . At the Arlington Civic Symphony Chamber Music Concert, Mrs. E. R. McLean, jr., of 1711 N. Inglewood st., Arlington, Va., overheard this comment from the 6-year-old behind her: "I like it better when the whole orchestra plays. This way there isn't enough noise" . . . American Veterans Committee members who attend Tuesday night's open forum on "The Third Party" (Petworth Library, 8 p. m.) will hear CIO representatives take opposing sides in the discussion. Elizabeth Sasuly of the CIO Food and Tobacco Workers Union will debate the issue with George Weaver, who is a fellow CIO official . . . And regardless of who wins the debate, I'll still give you Wallace and two touchdowns . . . The Delaware and Maine State Societies will have quite an intermission program at their joint dance at the Shoreham tonight. Highlights will be some barbershop harmonies by the Diplomats, one of the top groups in this part of the country. They'll be aided and abetted by Congressman Frank Fellows of Maine, who says he can sing bass, baritone or tenor, as the occasion demands. A jolly good Fellows to have around, eh?

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

The current Dodge ads feature the line "Dodge moves forward by leaps and bounds." Mrs. Jean B. Baird of 1920 S st. nw. muses:

"Gosh—just like the Model T Ford we used to have."

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Jessel received so many requests to make after-dinner speeches that Darryl Zanuck, his employer, finally decided to relieve him of these social engagements which distract him from his production activities. "George," asked Zanuck, "did you ever make a bad speech?" . . . "Yes," confessed the oft-married Jessel, "four times. I said 'I do.'"

News Department: Ingrid Bergman's daughter, Pia, will make her screen debut in Miss Bergman's "Joan of Arc" . . . Lady Mendl, the 90-year-old party-giver-decorator, has redecorated her hospital room here. She wears gloves and pearls in bed . . . Governor Warren's confidential prediction is that Henry Wallace will poll at least 350,000 votes in California—enough to make a Democratic victory here questionable . . . RCA-Victor will release a recording about the Brooklyn Dodgers, with an oratorio by Robert Merrill, the Metropolitan Opera star. Irving Kolodin, music editor of the Saturday Review of Literature, was asked what he thought of the record, and replied: "Are you asking me as a music critic or as a Giant fan?"

Social note: No Hollywood home is considered complete now unless it has a movie projector—particularly with the mass production of 16mm projectors and the releasing of popular films in 16mm reels. Groucho Marx went to six dinner parties last week, and each time the host showed a movie after dinner. On the seventh day Marx visited the home of Michael Kanin, producer of "A Double Life," and again was shown a movie. "It's getting so," sighed Marx, "you got to go to the theater if you don't want to see a movie."

MUSIC DEPARTMENT: Ira Gershwin, the lyricist, has voted twice in his life: once for Al Smith and the other time for Roosevelt. Last week Gershwin was puzzled by a subpena from the Tenney committee, the California legislative group investigating subversive activities in Hollywood . . . "What could Tenney possibly learn by questioning you, Gershwin?" he was asked. "He probably wants to know," replied the song writer, "which comes first, the lyrics or the music."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

'Hush' Engineered on Thomas

By Drew Pearson

Behind the move to shift the grain-speculation probe from the Senate Appropriations Committee to the Senate Expenditures Committee is a strong backstage attempt to hush up the facts regarding the amazing grain and cotton deals of Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma.

Tydings

The drive to let Senator Thomas off the hook is spearheaded by Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, with the support of most other Democrats in the Appropriations Committee. They don't like to see a fellow Democrat in trouble, and Thomas himself happens to be a member of this committee.

"He's written you a letter telling of his market transactions," declared Tydings. "What more do you want? There's no use continuing this persecution."

"Nevertheless," replied Ferguson, who is chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee probing grain speculators, "I'm going to continue the investigation of Senator Thomas and all others until I get the facts."

However, Tydings and colleagues have managed to block an expenditure of $20,000 which Ferguson needs to pay investigators before he can proceed further. Appropriations Committee Democrats are expected to vote against this $20,000 unless their colleague, Thomas, is exempt from further inquiry. Also it looks as if enough Republicans would join them to save the gentleman from Oklahoma.

In fact, when the question of publicizing grain speculators arose last December, Senator Chan Gurney of South Dakota and Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts joined the Democrats in voting no.

That is why hard-hitting Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Appropriations Committee and who favors a full and fearless investigation, has worked out a plan with Ferguson to transfer the speculation probe to the Senate Expenditures Committee. Ferguson is also a member of this committee, and would have the support not only of its courageous chairman, Aiken of Vermont, but of a more liberal committee membership, including Thye (Minn.), Hickenlooper (Iowa), Ives (N. Y.) and Taylor (Idaho).

Note—Aside from Bridges and Ferguson, the Senate Appropriations Committee includes some of the most reactionary members in the Senate—McKellar (Tenn.), Brooks (Ill.), Wherry (Nebr.), Dworshak (Idaho), McCarran (Nev.), Overton (La.) and Thomas himself.

Loyal U. S. Servants

People who have been worried about the Red scare and the specter of spies working inside the United States Government should be reassured from J. Edgar Hoover's investigation of so-called "disloyalty." Actually, Hoover hasn't found very much of it.

Hoover's efficient G-men have now been able to investigate 418,104 United States employes. Of this number only 399 were found to have records which warranted even the remotest suspicion.

Of these 399, in only 8 cases did any disloyal data develop. Twenty-five Government employes resigned during the investigation and some of the other remaining cases have not yet been finished. However, it looks as if so-called disloyalty is going to run far less than 1/10 of 1 per cent.

Army Violates Law

Congressman Forrest Harness, Indiana Republican, is preparing another hot report criticizing the Army for using public funds to propagandize for peacetime conscription.

Harness will charge that the Army is continuing its propagandizing at public expense, despite a report by the House Expenditures Committee last July clearly showing that brass hats were violating the law and had spent more than $50,000 of the public's money for lobbying purposes.

When called on the carpet Secretary of the Army Royall said he had "no personal knowledge" of the lobbying campaign and he "had no apologies to make."

Royall was technically right on the first point, since he became Secretary of War in July, though as Undersecretary of War he should have known what was happening and used his influence against it. However, Congressman Harness' second report will charge that since July the Army has been sending men from its new UMT unit at Fort Knox, Ky., to all parts of the country to make speeches before Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs, plugging compulsory military training. The Congressman from Indiana will charge that these and other speeches are made at the taxpayers' expense.

Note—Whereas FDR had a great yen for the Navy, Harry Truman fondly remembers his days in the Army. Visiting with the Reserve Officers Association the other day he said proudly, "I am still a colonel in the Reserve."

Merry-Go-Round

It was Mississippi's sharp-tongued Senator Eastland, together with rootin', tootin' Congressman John Rankin, also of Mississippi, who organized the boycott of the President's recent reception for Congressmen. They were mad over the President's civil rights message. . . . Meanwhile a committee is being organized in New York to put the civil rights program into effect. Those invited are Bing Crosby, Irving Berlin, Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard; Mike Cowles, publisher of Look Magazine, Barry Bingham, publisher of Louisville Courier-Journal; Bernard Baruch, Herbert Bayard Swope, Gen. "Wild Bill" Donovan, Charles Taft, Sumner Welles and John D. Rockefeller. . . . General MacArthur has been cabling Washington every week or so asking that the United States either get out of Korea entirely or else take a firm policy.
